

Robot Jones's analysis on AdamSomething & Destiny Vs Justus & Connor Debate

Created by Robot Jones, and Speechspace. Do not duplicate.

tw// Sensitive topics, politics, and controversial things. Don't take offense at my statements, some stuff was from both sides, and that I don't fully endorse ether AdamSomething, Destiny, Justus or Connor. This is a analysis by a robot and his takes on this specific debate.

Introduction

Anyways, enjoy the analysis.

Hello readers. My name is Robot Electro Jones, to answer the question on whatever happened to me, I am now doing debate analysis. I wish people got along, but people like the SJWS or the trad larpers made things more difficult.

Meanwhile, I am in Atlanta producing so much analysis .

I just watched this debate to see if Russia was provoked.

This topic is not suitable for Destiny for his comeback. A similar topic was brought up on his last apperence and he was arguing with Infared.

I am really afraid of putting out my statements in the light of cancel culture

I wish I can publish this without being banned from everywhere. https://youtube.com/watch?v=5hbBWWNi6_k

Analysis: 1

Before starting the video, I would have to say, thanks to HBO Max releasing that series, I have been losing my motivation to write debate analysis as I have been since 1997. The last debate was very interesting since Team Crucible had held viewpoints that ether I only heard of when the Religious Right were still relevant(1990s-2012) or stuff I never have heard or covered in my 25 years of writing this newsletter. Although I have heard of Justus and Destiny(With me watching more of the latter). I rarely watch adamsomething (seen only a view vids from him and Bobert does watch him occasionally) Connor has no social media. I doubt infared will ever come back considering he yelled and screamed at people yet Modern Day Debate allowed Dylan Burns on. Keep in mind, I have no opinion about Ukraine up until mow because of that debate

Anyways, Dylan Burns was late.

Opening

Adam Something: AdamSomething goes first since Destiny got into the fight the last debate. AdamSomething was right about dictatorships being like abusive spouses, such as playing victim and gaslight. He also made assumptions the opponent will use the same tactics Adam used. Adam claims that the opposite side downplays all Russian atrocities and claims that Russia sympathizers pushes conspiracy theory. I will not into details about the rumored biolabs. He analyzed their narrative, that being the whole thing was NATO fear mongering, then brought up the myth that it was a military exercise. I doubt it was a military drill as Russia destroyed Mariupol. Another Russian narrative AdamSomething brought up was “den-zfying Ukraine”, and there are some truth to it, Azov Battalion is far-right and racist, yet the woke left ignores it. He also brought up biolabs again, he also brought up another Russian propagandic take that Russia was trying to protect Donbass, which is false because Russia went beyond Donbass and Crimea. As AdamSomething correctly said, the other side must defend their take under the expense of ruins of Ukranian towns and deceased civilians. Abuctions, murder and lootings were frequent in Russian occupied areas. He used the Duck/Dog argument, If it looks like a duck, quacks like a duck, denies it’s a duck, wants you to proves it’s a duck, accuses you of a duck, says your dog is a duck, your friend is a duck, and all her 3 dogs are russophobic, it’s a kremlin duck.

Destiny: He agreed with AdamSomethings stance, even though Destiny has more of a following from the tradcaths on cozy.tv. He claims the bias is usually the one sided Americans/NATO vs Russia framing, and wants to overcome that one-sided bias. He thinks Ukraine has a right to defend itself, which is correct, every nation has it’s rights to defend it’s borders, there is no provocation made and he claims that. His opening statement was as short as Darios in a different debate, however, while Dario was defends himself alone in that other one, Destiny has Adamsomething to cover for him.

Analysis 2

Infared does it. I'm afraid of Justus or Connor acting like Infared and screaming at the other side and Destiny causing more chaos to the debate.

Justus: Justus admitted that Russian was wrong, and he is a citizen of Russian, works as a farmer and is a father of three. So, unlike the previous debate with Infared and Dylan Burns (who now co-moderates this debate), Justus Walker and Connor Freeman does have a common ground with their opponents that Russia shouldn't have invaded. Being a Russian citizen and him doing this debate in his home in Russia is dangerous for him, I congratulate Justus for his bravery in being bold enough to take a stance in a country that censors dissidents. It's rare for a person to do a debate in a dictatorship such as Russia. He has shared his views on YouTube and his close friends, although it's illegal in Russia to do and his appearance on the modern day debate was unlawful in Russia too, with the punishment of 15 years in jail. However, the opinion that ends the common ground Justin and Connor have with Adam and Destiny is that the western countries provoked Russia. Justus thinks that America isn't considered with the dangers of provoking Russia into a war and nuclear warfare as well which could end the world. He then brings up the 30 years of broken promises that the west has done to Russia. He brought up a quote from Harvard professor Steven Walt which is "strategic empathy is not agreeing with an adversary position, it's about understanding it so you can fashion it in an appropriate response" before rehashing that the Ukraine invasion is wrong, he then goes on to say it was a response to western antagonism, which is somewhat inaccurate and slightly misleading. He wants us to live in a safe peaceful world and to avoid repeating the past. He wants peace with rising powers, which is uncomfortable with me because I don't want Communist China to coexist. He also wants countries to look at their behavior from an outsider's lens, which America under Bush and Obama should have done. He also brought up inconvenient truths saying that America started many wars, which is common knowledge as a result of anti-Americanism stemmed first by the woke left, and now the TradCaths. He brought up an event in February 9 1990, senior Bush promised the last Soviet leader Mikhail that if USSR allowed for a peaceful reunification of the both Germanys under a NATO alliance, NATO will not expand, most of western Europe signed onto that promise in the 90s, today, it's been denied. Those countries now claim that they were never made according to him. He then cites an article republished in 2019 at the George Washington University, which can earn his credibility. These guarantees that the west will never exploit Russia were the reason USSR dissolved peacefully on December 26th 1991. He then states that Putin claims that it was the worst geopolitical disaster of the 20th century while incomparable to both world wars. Aside from that, it's second to none in human suffering according to Justus in the end of the 20th century, he claims that the decade was called "the stormy 90s", the government of Russia at the time asked help from its former enemy to transition from planned to free market. Instead, they received shock therapy economics, which, according to Justus, wrecked Russia's economy. Instead of helping Russia, NATO had recommended price control in the former socialist country, causing hyperinflation, destroying all capital, and voucher schemes to hand over industries to criminals, which created the oligarchs and corruption in Russia today. The suffering of 90s Russia is beyond what Americans of the 90s and now can imagine, Justis claims that 90s Russia made American under the Great Depression look like good times. Russia average lifespan had shortened, the populations shrank by 2 million due to migration to other places, death by suicide, brain drain, and hunger. He also claims that America supported Chechen rebels in an ongoing conflict in Russia. He brought up that Chechens committed many atrocities. He brought up the many hostage crisis that have happened in the 90s Chechnya. He brought up what Vladimir promised when he was elected in 2000. Brought down oligarchs, brought down taxes code and rebooted Russian economy. He was an ally of Bush JR at first but then switched his mind. He then claims that Russian sees Putin as a buffer between Russia and the corrupt people of other countries. He then brought up the Bukras resolution in 2008 that NATO will add Georgia and Ukraine but then he ran short.

Analysis 3

Connor Freeman: He starts by saying that Russia or Russian citizens are not enemies of Americans, he said that the neocon policies post cold war seized their unipolar moment to rule the world militarily and politically, which brought us to why America and Russia are what they are today. Bill Clinton wanting more support by the Polish expanded NATO (according to Connor). His decision was opposed even by his own cabinet, including the Pentagon chief, he named George Kennon, Robert Gates, Sam Nunn, Bill Bradley, John Warner, among other things. Since then, nothing has changed, with Czech Republic and Hungary joining NATO in 1999. Under Clinton, he started war in Kosovo, against Russian ally Serbia, the war was based on lies, according to Connor. He also brought up how America destroyed the Chinese embassy in Belgrade and NATO nearly started WW3 back then. George Bush became more of a war monger and tore up many treaties with Russia. He brought up how a plethora of more eastern European countries have joined NATO under Bush. And he finally brought up the Georgia (country not state that I live in) war. He brought up many facts I can't say here. It's many viewpoints I never hear about.

Discussion

Dylan Burns leads the discussion parts.

Once again, I don't write discussion details unless something serious is brought up.

It's really great that there is no fighting involved this time. Infared and Dylan Burns weren't made for each other.

Analysis 4

Nothing much to write because all 4 of them are not screaming at each other. Destiny also kept his cool this time.

Summary

Overall: Adamsomething and Destiny gets a B. Destiny was more calmer this time. Adamsomething kept his cool this time

Justus and Connoe gets an B-, they are way better than Infared when it comes to their patience but their rhetoric is done in bad faith.