

Introduction

We feel, given recent events regarding average, that it is necessary to inform people of the hypocrisy they have demonstrated through their public “exposal” of our friend group. Despite lenience on the parts of Niftski, Haxor, HitzCritz, LeKukie, and the moderators over the course of three years, average has repeatedly exhibited problematic, toxic, and inappropriate behavior. This includes the use of homophobic slurs, transphobic slurs, doxxing, and blackmail; they have threatened to publicly vilify people to get what they want, also threatening to cancel people they dislike for behavior they themselves have both perpetrated and permitted in their own community. This is all in addition to them rigging the vote to ban input swapping to sabotage Niftski’s progress towards an SMB1 Any% TAS tie, something that is proven in this document and video.

Doxxing:

These two screenshots took place in Squid, averge's private Discord server, where they, ScratchySpeedrunner, and 108Pi (Amber) all exposed a community member's real name and spread it throughout the server. They also attacked this person within the server, fueling escalating drama around them. While it was bad enough for average and their friends to dox someone, the person they targeted was also especially vulnerable; on several occasions, this individual openly expressed in public servers, including ones average and their associates were in, that they struggle to understand social cues due to their neurodivergence. This person has explicitly stated in the past that they find it hard to recognize or handle harmful behavior, as they have difficulty interpreting tone in English text. The doxxing did more than just violate their privacy; it specifically targeted an individual who, by their own admission, was ill-equipped to handle a harassment campaign like this. However, this was clearly not a concern for average or their friends, as they continued to mock and speak negatively about them behind the scenes:

These two screenshots took place in serverrox, sullyrox's old private server, this time doxing this same runner's mom. Sullyrox flaunts how he found this information on social media while average constantly jokes about it and spreads her first and last name.

Serverrox Ghost Ban

These three screenshots show that the server this doxxing took place in, serverrox, was later hidden to everyone who was in the server except for sullyrox. The first screenshot here shows the new view, and the other two show Vencord, a Discord plugin, being used to see the inaccessible text channels. The server was viewable in early March, but is inaccessible as of March 16th, 2026. It is quite likely that this was done so nobody could look back at old messages to find incriminating instances of doxxing and other misdeeds.

Blackmailing the Mod Team

In 2025, average had submitted an application to join the SMB1 leaderboard moderation team. However, some moderators did not feel comfortable having average on the team because of their past behavior in both private and public servers. Average took issue with this, and in DMs with a current mod team member, threatened to use blackmail to force their way onto the team, saying, "I will not allow details of that situation as well as my disappointment in the handling by moderators to remain a private matter."

average11 [redacted] just to be clear, since i imagine this will come up from [redacted], if my reaction to comments from a [redacted] year old moderator that went completely unpunished contributes to your decision on my eligibility for the mod team, i will not allow details of that situation as well as my disappointment in the handling by moderators to remain a private matter. i don't want to have any issues with anyone on the mod team and furthermore i'm very willing to put issues behind me for the common goal of supporting the community or to discuss the situation with you directly or mods other than [redacted], but again if that factors into yours or other moderator's decisions i will be extremely upset with the handling of [redacted]'s comments and my ability to contribute to this community due to it.

[redacted] to be absolutely honest this message just reads like a threat and i really do not appreciate that.

i frankly did not even think about [redacted] or would even factor him in because that does not have relevance, the handling wasn't good because by the time it was brought up to the supers he already left the team and began distancing himself from the community, it should have been brought up sooner but it wasn't so we learn from this stuff to ensure that never happens again.

- average11 [redacted]
1. i am not trying to threaten anyone, and i wouldn't have brought this up if i hadn't heard that [redacted] had expressed discomfort with myself on mod team due to my 'grudge' against [redacted]
  2. the notion that it was brought up to supers late is ridiculous, [redacted] had been made aware of it before he was even a supermod and he was well aware of it for the time he was a supermod while [redacted] was moderating as well as myself urging him to take action.
  3. i am not asking to be automatically added as a moderator, i am asking for fair treatment as a candidate since i've heard that a situation i believe to be unfair has been directly brought up in mod server pertaining to myself before

[redacted] When was [redacted] made aware of it, i want the date please.

average11 [redacted] i couldn't give you an exact date because it was only discussed in private vcs for a long time but i have distinct memories of [redacted] discussing his disappointment in [redacted]'s conduct on the minecraft server before [redacted] left the community either way thats not really the main point to me, the main point to me is that i think it is extremely unfair for my reaction to that (banning [redacted] for less than 12 hours and talking things out with him later that day) should not be a legitimate reason for myself to be withheld from mod team
i think there are plenty of valid reasons you could have but that having been brought up concerns me quite frankly it's not that which is the issue for me because one person is just one person because i would not deny you access purely over the 12 hour ban, it's more the fact i've seen hesitation and discomfort from other members of the team, not just [redacted], because some members do not like how you have acted and behaved.

[redacted] saying it was ridiculous that the others didn't know because only one super knew, seems like you did not account for the possibility that there was possibly a delay between [redacted] knowing and us knowing.

what i said in one channel is not the entire picture as things are discussed between only supers as well to respect the privacy of others moderators who may not want some of what they have said to us known by other members.

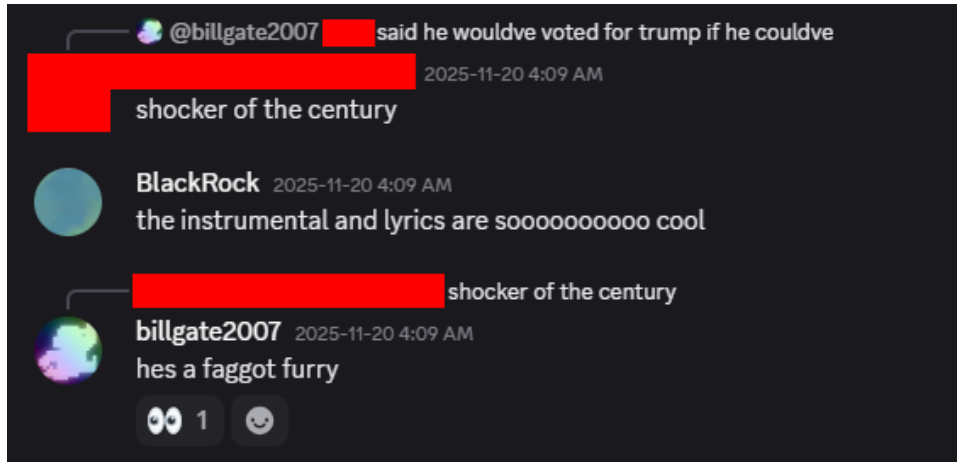

average11 [redacted] wait what exactly are you talking about here because im just talking about when i was discussed as a potential consultant
i don't know what you said im just going based off something i heard was said by a moderator in combat of the idea if me joining [redacted] there are a few people on the mod who would not be comfortable with you being on there because of how you have acted in public and private servers towards others in the community, and i'm not just talking about the [redacted] stuff.

honestly the fact that you inadvertently put pressure and threatened me even though you say you weren't trying to because of hearsay really isn't appreciated.

what i said was for example, [redacted] is not comfortable with average when bringing up a thing about the comfort of others in the mod team

Toxicity Towards Niftski

(Upon hearing the news of Niftski making it into the Guinness World Records Gamer's Edition 2026, this was their first reaction in Squid)

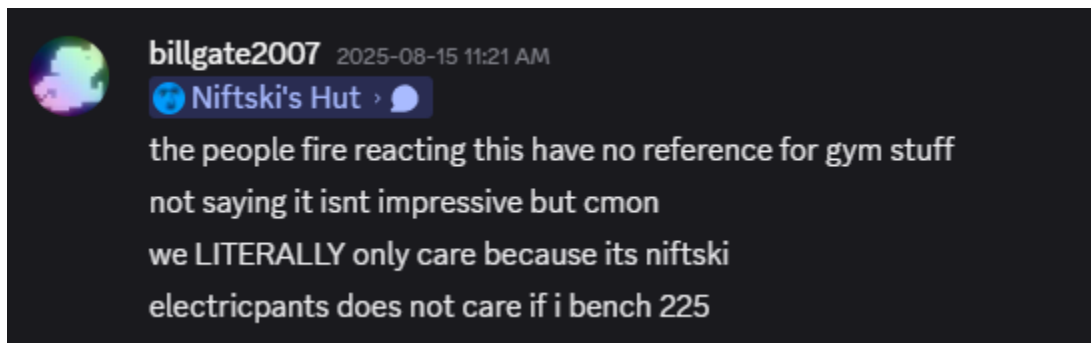

(average saying Niftski celebrates only to make his achievements look more impressive)

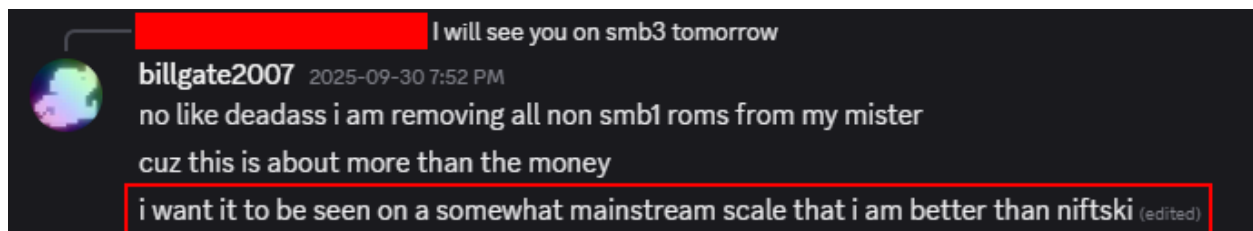

(Posted in Haxor's server, the main SMB1 speedrunning server)

(average saying Niftski isn't good at 8-4 in Squid)

(Linking a clip of Niftski benchpressing 225lbs and saying people only care because it's Niftski)

Props to Niftski for persevering through this MONSTER grind. I can't even fathom the level of dedication and patience required to get through so many attempts and still pull off the record.

i saw niftski in my comment section and started seeing red

(average claiming in a private group chat that they saw Niftski in their comment section and started seeing red) averge11

this is why its not at all his fault but niftski has had the worst impact on smb1 of any top runner ever (average privately claiming that Niftski has had the worst impact on smb1 of any top runner ever)

average11

i find it irritating because my shit will always look that much less impressive because i don't play the game in the same way niftski does like nobody KNOWS i have the best and second best 4/8 consistency sessions ever i think that the structure of smb1 consumption makes it such that only already developed runners can receive recognition for anything short of any% record

(average privately claiming that their achievements look less impressive than Niftski's because they don't play the game in the same way Niftski does)

ts niftski tas tie baiting pmo niftski when its time to tell his fans he will get tas tie vs niftski when it is time to get an actual legitimate tas tie 8-4

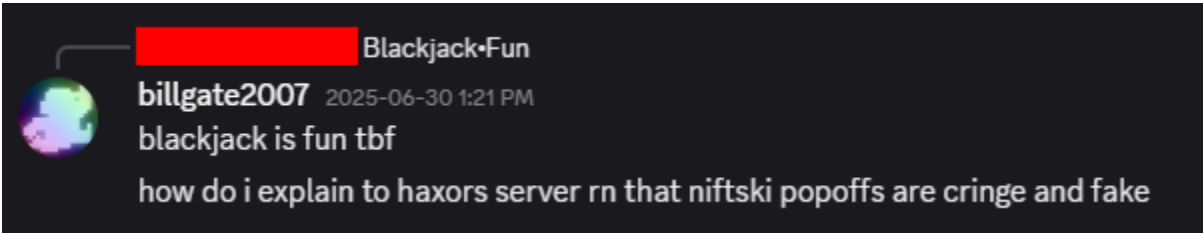

@billgate2007 ts niftski tas tie baiting pmo

(average saying that Niftski is "tas tie baiting" in Squid)

(average publicly telling a community member in Haxor's server that they "coulda waited a couple days" before releasing a TAS overlay video involving Niftski)

(average asking in Squid how to tell Haxor's server that Niftski's popoffs are cringe and fake)

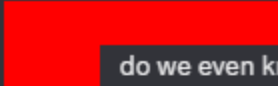

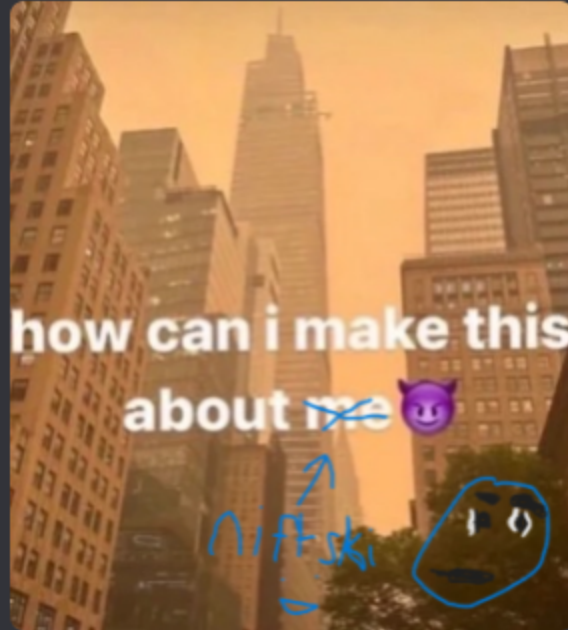

average11 6/30/2025 2:07 PM

I really like Niftski's 4:54.798 popoff. Niftski is the King of popoffs!!

Amber 6/30/2025 2:07 PM

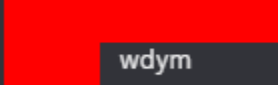

6/30/2025 2:08 PM

do we even know what that popoff was actually like i mean he did think at the time that he had barely missed .7
so it might've been more muted than some anyway

average11 6/30/2025 2:08 PM

he probably didnt pop off that much because he was aware his mic wasnt on i am sorry to inform you that he probably doesnt actually react like that to speedruns

6/30/2025 2:09 PM

wdym
are you saying he literally does it for the audience

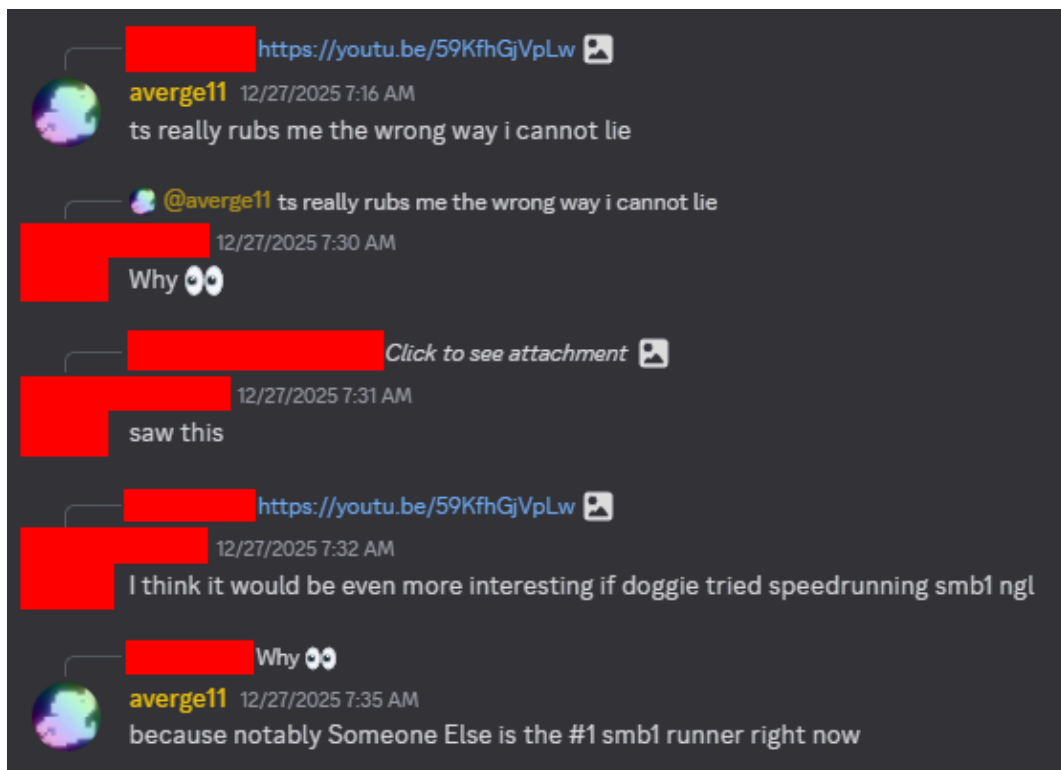

average11 6/30/2025 2:09 PM

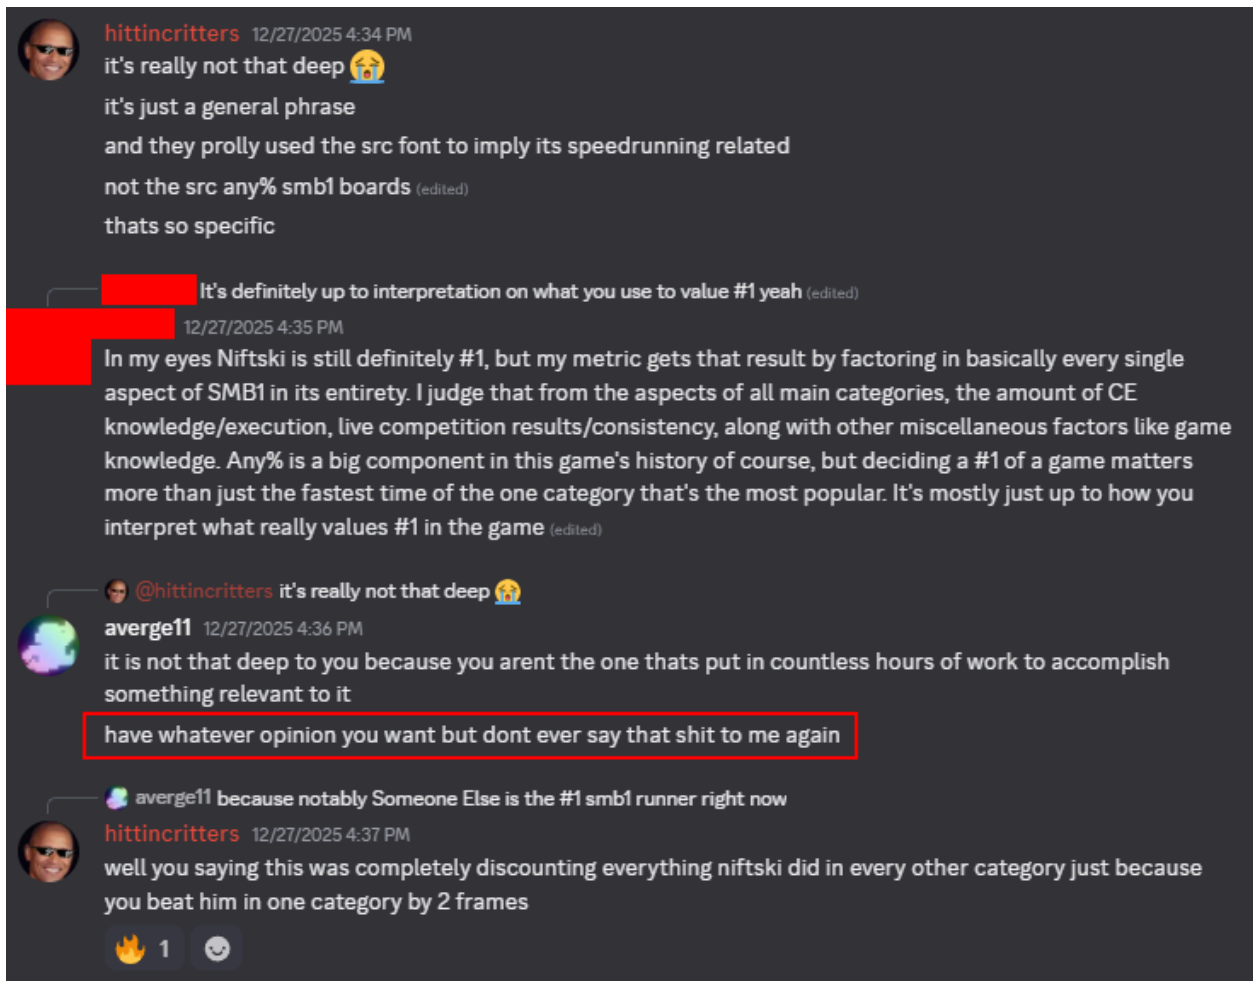

to an extent i mean yeah

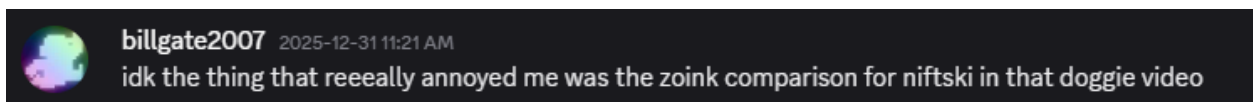

Average then attempts to convince people in the public SMB1 server that Niftski fakes his popoffs for engagement. For reference, Niftski's mic was accidentally broken in his 4:54.798 Any% former world record speedrun, and the video shows Niftski's shocked reaction after finding out his mic wasn't working after the run concluded. However, average attempts to convince people otherwise, even though this claim is completely untrue.

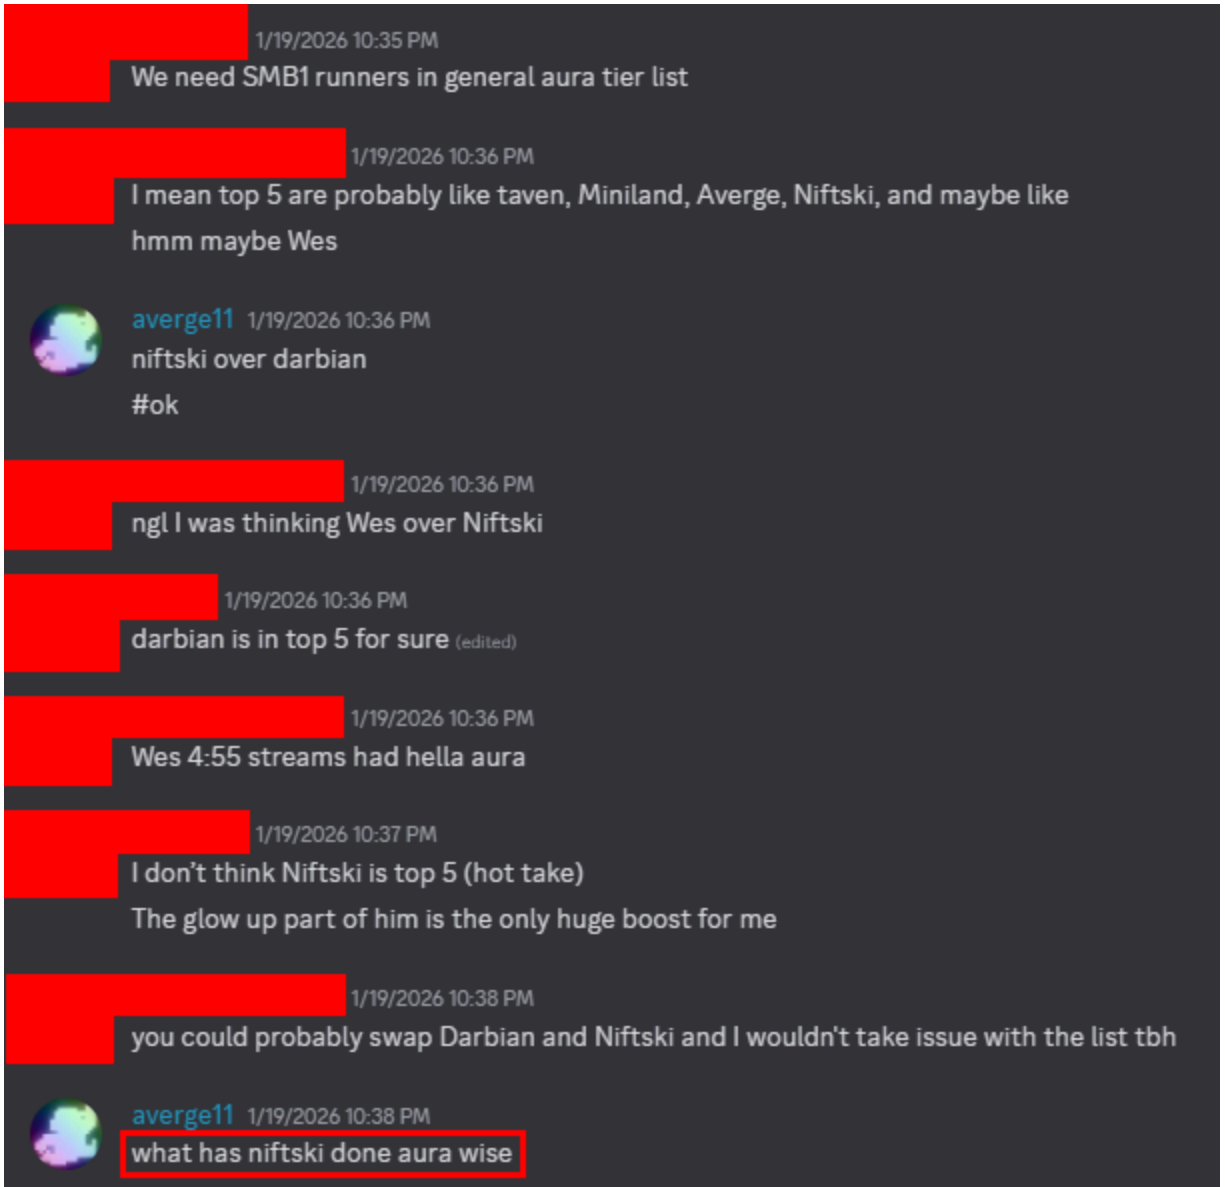

For reference, average was replying to this video being publicly posted in Haxor's server: The #1 Mario Speedrunner vs GEOMETRY DASH. They claimed it rubbed them the wrong way that Niftski was labelled the "#1 Mario Speedrunner" even though they had the Any% world record at the time. It's worth mentioning that this video was recorded before average got the Any% world record, and Niftski still has 5 out of 6 of the main category records.

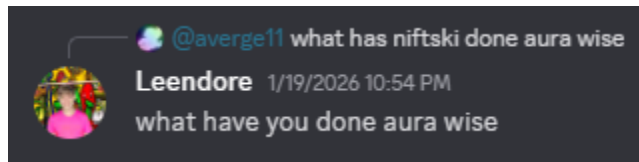

(In Haxor's server, HitzCritz stands up for Niftski, while average gets defensive and replies "have whatever opinion you want but dont ever say that shit to me again")

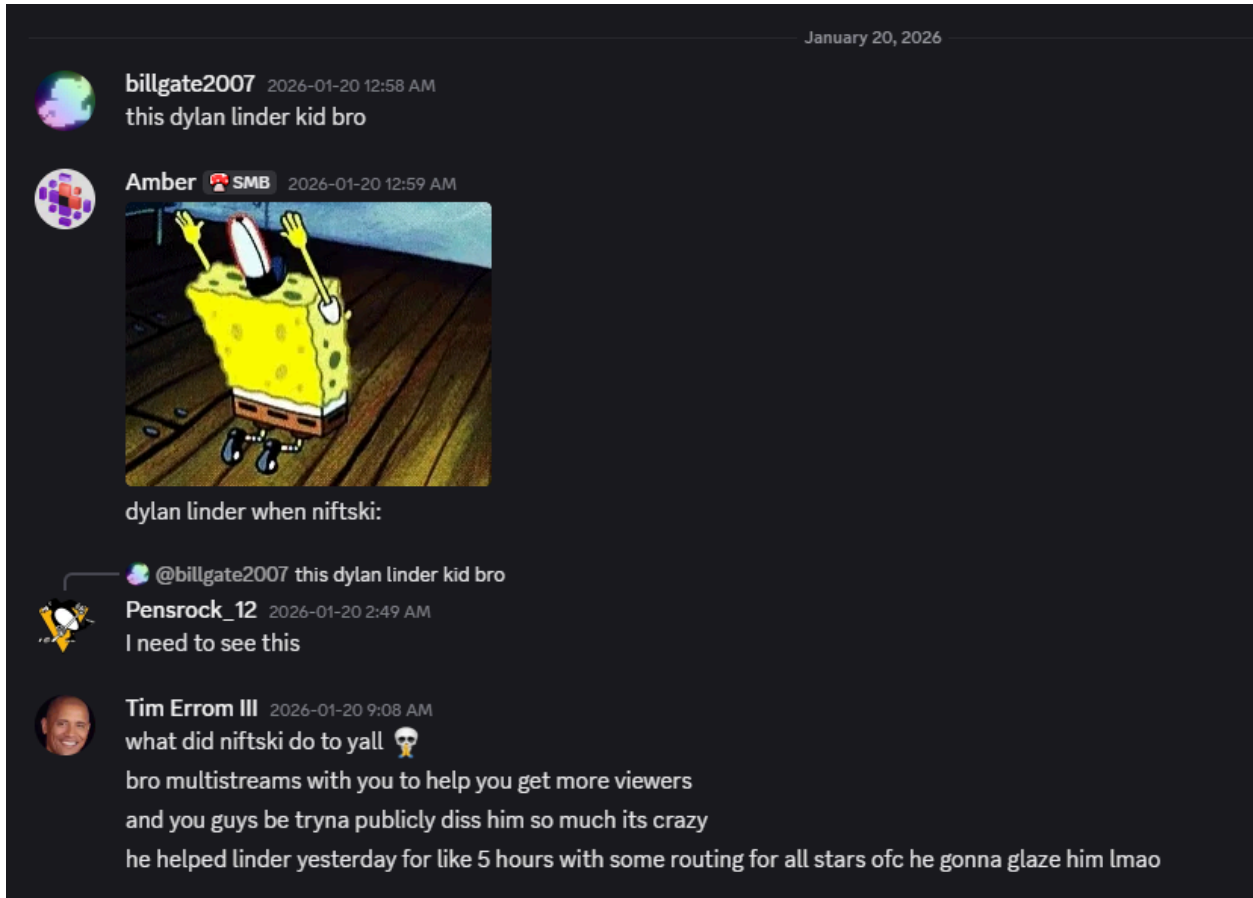

(In Squid, average says it annoyed them that Niftski was compared to Geometry Dash player Zoink in Doggie's video, who is said to be the #1 player of that game)

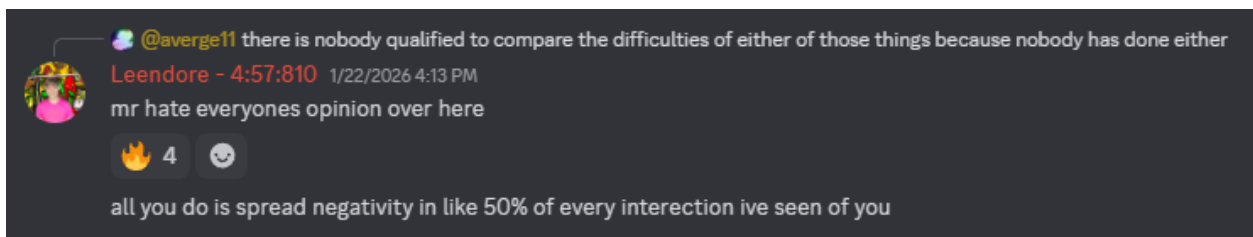

(average publicly takes a shot at Niftski, asking “what has Niftski done aura wise”)

(Niftski's friend, Leendore, sticks up for him in a reply)

(average takes the conversation to their private server, where they and others make fun of Leendore for defending his friend, while HitzCritz defends both and questions why everyone is going after them)

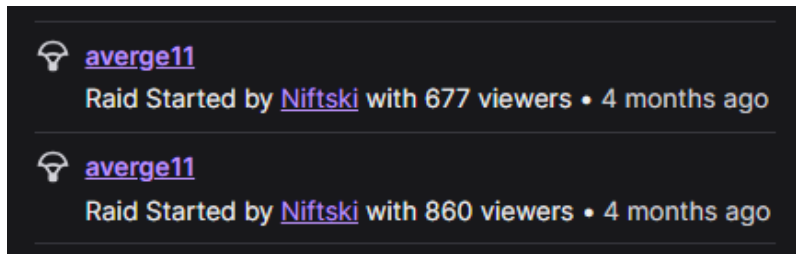

(3 days later, Leendore calls out average publicly in Haxor's server for their continued hostility towards other community members.)

Despite average's toxic behavior toward Niftski and those around him, Niftski remained highly supportive of their efforts. They frequently participated in squad streams with average and raided their Twitch channel, drawing considerable attention to their progress. After average secured the world record, Niftski retweeted the run on his Twitter. He also assisted average in obtaining an official Guinness World Records plaque by providing the contact information of a Guinness employee, the same contact Niftski used to secure his plaque.

(Niftski retweets average's world record on Aug 28, 2025)

(Niftski raids average multiple times, contributing to the growth of their audience in November 2025)

(Niftski offers to send average the internal Guinness contact email on Aug 28, 2025)

Niftski <[redacted]@gm... Sun, Sep 14, 2025, 7:53 PM to [redacted]

Hi, yeah my record was beaten recently. I plan to try and get it back soon! I am in touch with [redacted] and they were interested in getting a GWR plaque as well. I'm cool with doing a story about it as well!

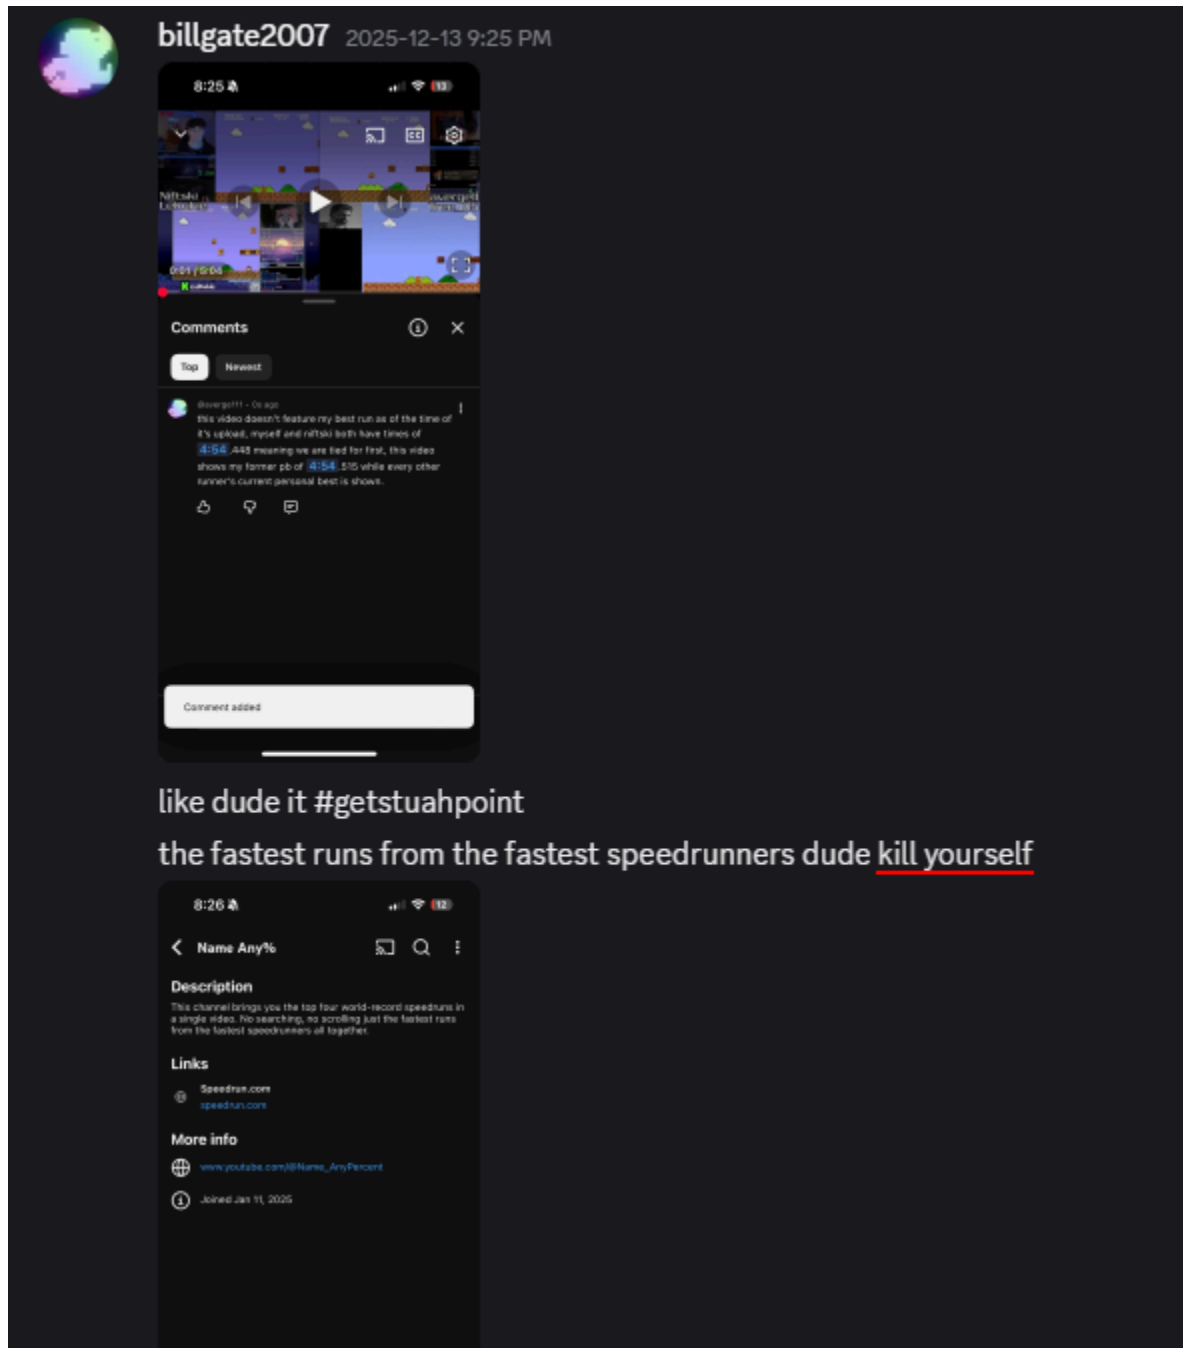

I did receive the book as well, thank you all so much! I wanted to ask, is the book released and is it fine if I post photos of the pages I'm in on social media?

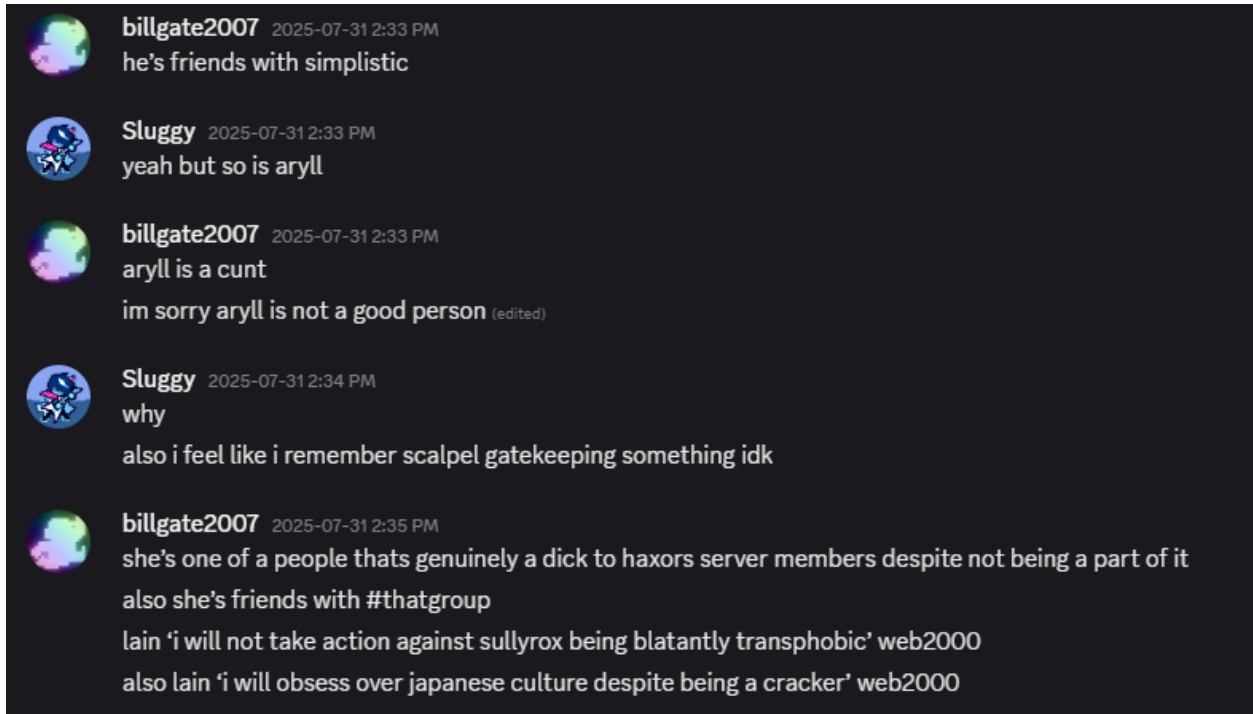

(Niftski reaches out to the Guinness contact about getting avertge a plaque on Sep 14, 2025)

Despite this support, avertge frequently displayed signs of jealousy and spite towards Niftski in their private Discord server, specifically over his accomplishments and influence.

Toxicity Towards Other Community Members

but i cant say anything about it

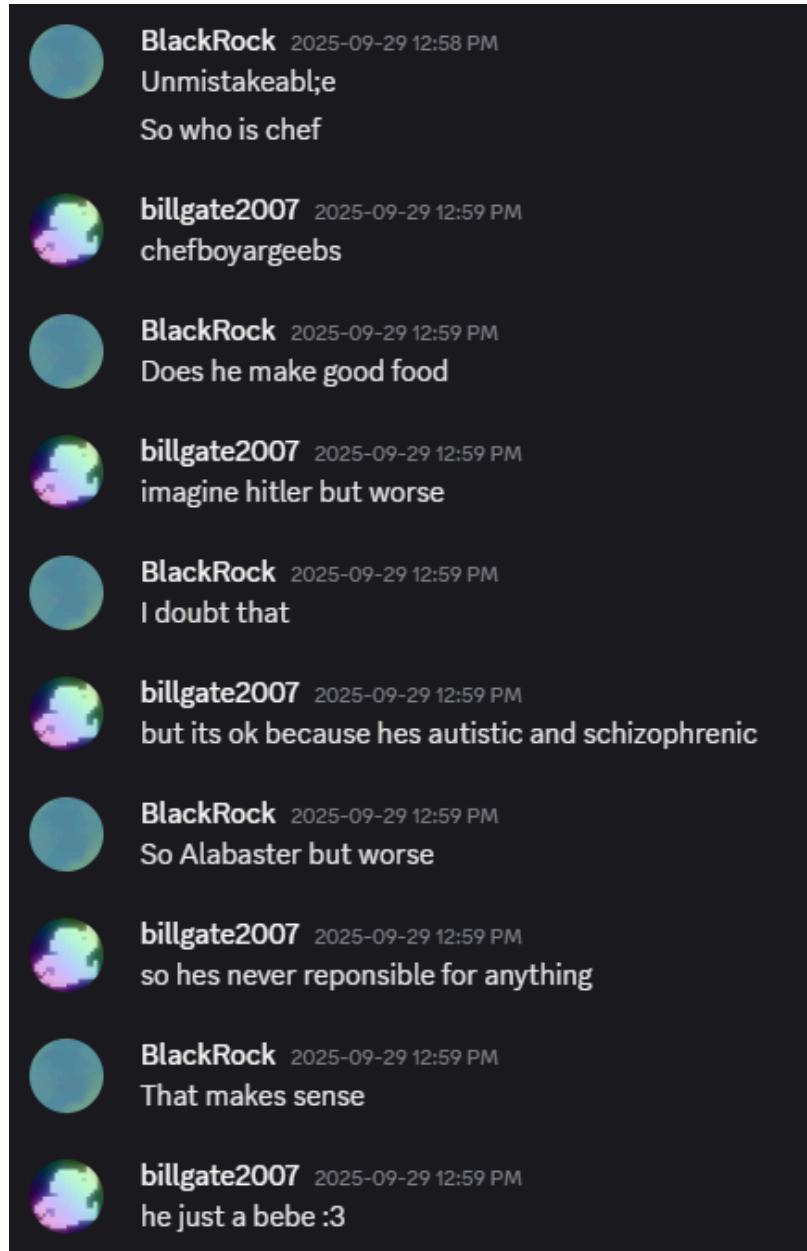

(average being toxic towards speedrunner Spiker, telling their friend xx_mr.swaggins_xx to call him dumb)

(average making sexually explicit false claims of speedrunner Nebula getting “double railed”)

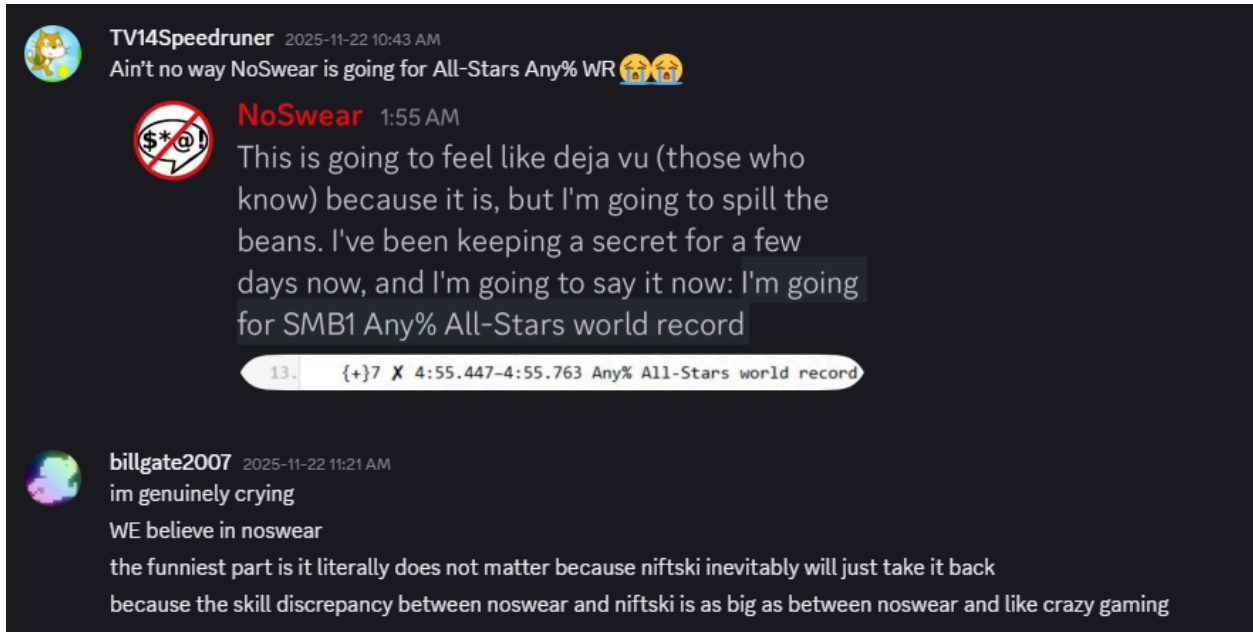

(average making fun of Nebula for being a “white furry from texas” saying “we ought to deport him to zimbabwe”)

(average saying Tetris player chefboyargeebs is “hitler but worse” while they and xx_mr.swaggins_xx joke about chef and Alabaster being autistic and schizophrenic)

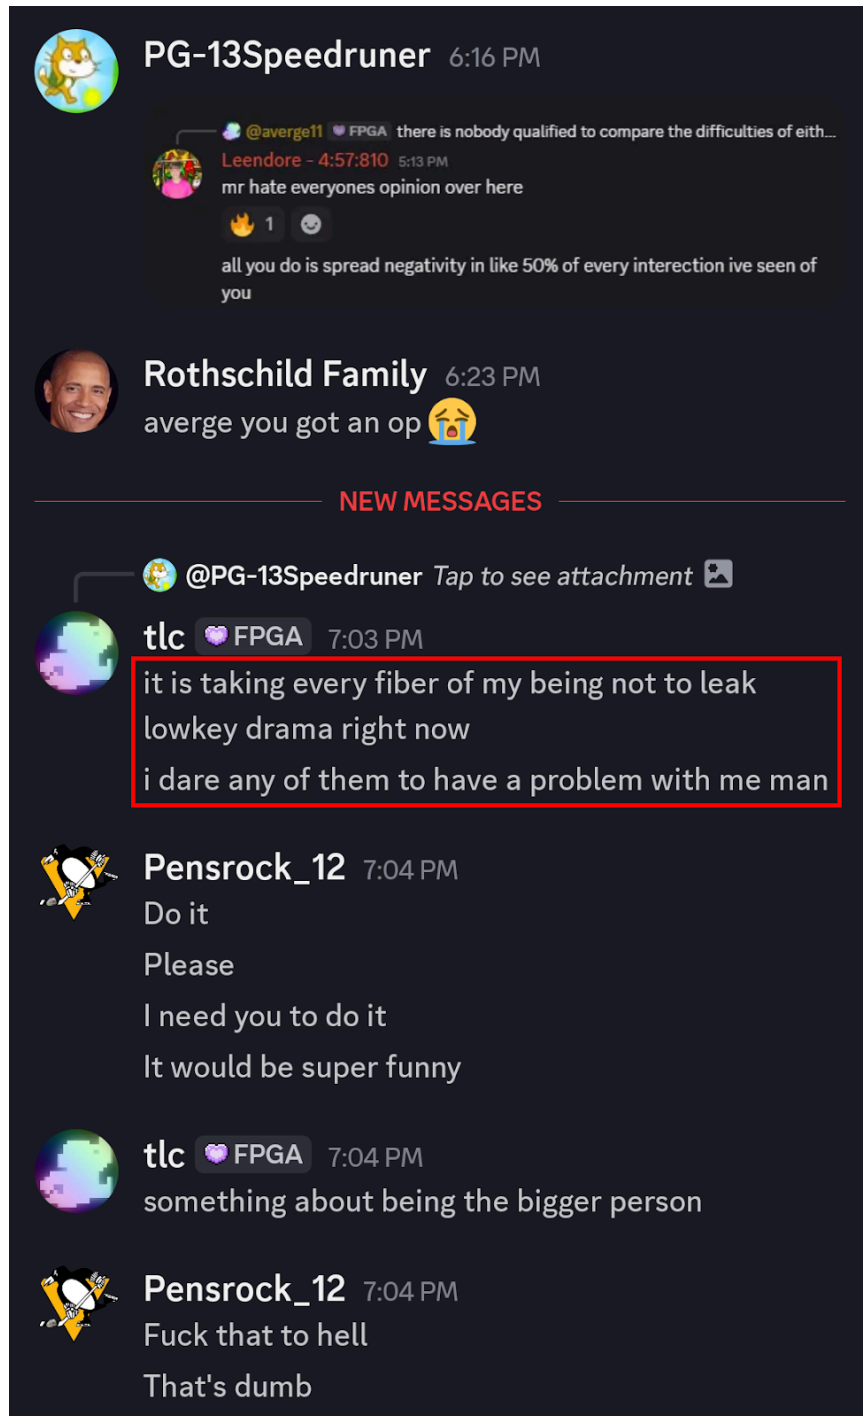

(average making fun of an SMB1 speedrunner asking “genuinely how is blgha so fucking bad at mario” while implying that their PB is bad.)

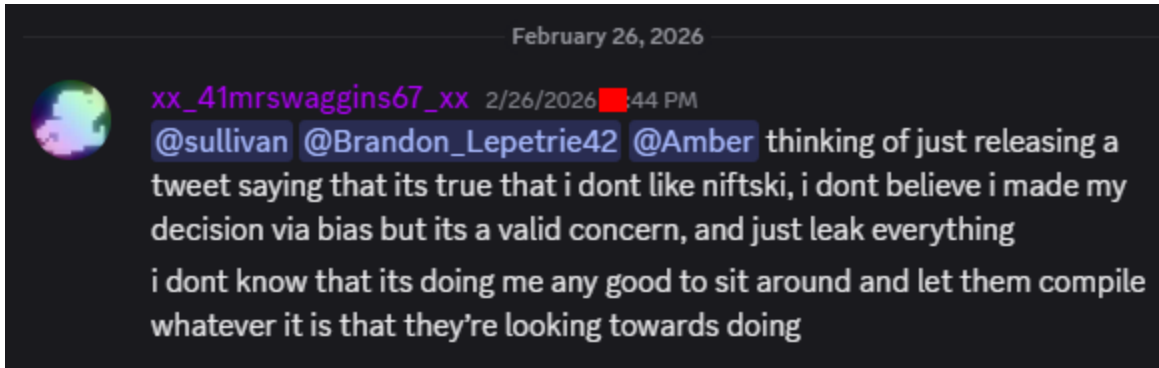

(average and ScratchySpeedrunner make fun of speedrunner NoSwear for having the goal of the Any% All-Stars world record, while average makes fun of another speedrunner, crazy gaming, for having a suboptimal skill level)

Other instances of toxicity towards others: "gay gives them the pass to be annoying", "this dylan linder kid bro", and "holy retard"

Actions Out of Spite/Malice and Publicizing Drama

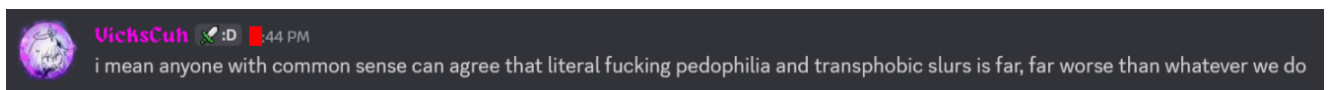

After Leendore publicly sticks up for Niftski as previously mentioned, average goes to their private server Squid and threatens to publicly leak dirt from Leendore's friend group, saying "i dare any of them to have a problem with me man". This shows that the only interest with releasing this information would be out of malice and emotion. A month later, average ended up releasing a document which mentioned the same situation in question.

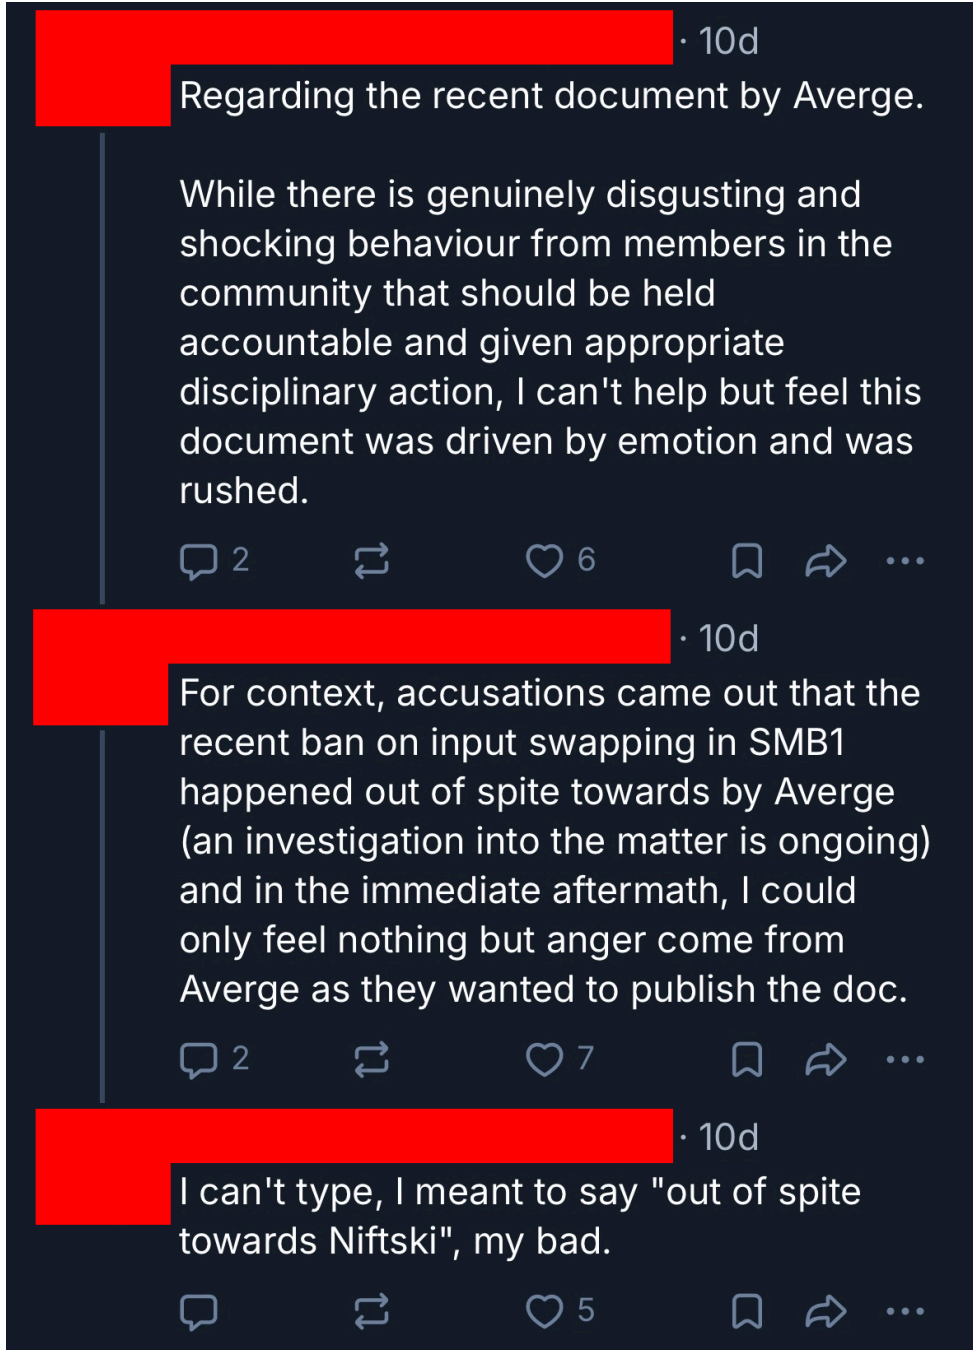

In a private channel of a new private Discord server owned by sullyrox called “night at the roxbury (john)”, average threatens to “leak everything” that they have against Niftski’s friend group. This was in response to being informed that we have evidence of their wrongdoings for both the input switching rule change and toxicity/jealousy towards Niftski. They claim, “i dont know that its doing me any good to sit around and let them compile whatever it is that they’re looking towards doing”, showing that the reasoning for leaking this would be out of malice. A bit over a week later, average publicly published their document, effectively “leaking everything.”

In sullyrox’s same private Discord server, average details their concern with how they would look in the public’s eye. It is clear that their primary concern is casting Niftski in a negative light, rather than holding jscarbo (the “mod” in question) accountable. Furthermore, average intentionally made the situation sound much worse than it really was. For context, this occurred in a public Discord server where Blazing 8’s tournaments were organized. Whoever placed dead last in one of these tournaments was compelled to change their profile picture to a shocking, cringe, or embarrassing image that was sent in the server. After one such tournament, jscarbo suggested that the loser change their profile picture to a random picture of someone’s genitalia. Average intentionally made the situation sound much worse than it actually was, as explained in detail in this section of this document: ☰ Response to "Squad & Accountability" While this behavior is still unacceptable and indefensible, jscarbo is clearly not a “pedophile” as average’s friend group has dangerously and falsely claimed. Here’s an example of this claim:

(Message from stem_kuki in sullyrox’s private server, “night at the roxbury (john)”)

A member of the mod team, who was neutral with the public release of average's document and both sides involved, posted this on Bluesky after average released their document. They believe that average's document was released out of malice, saying "I can't help but feel this document was driven by emotion and was rushed" and "I could only feel nothing but anger come from Avenge as they wanted to publish the doc".

averge11 ↩ ROX 5:40 PM

@everyone regarding the world record 'race':

to be clear, i do not respect how lekukie is going about his world record grind, and i think it was disrespectful to me as a competitor. lekukie was aware of and acknowledged through a mutual private server that i was having many issues genuinely preventing me from playing smb1 as a whole, however he decided to start a new grind with the knowledge that i wasn't currently in practice or even able to play the game optimally, as well as without communicating to me ever that he planned on doing so. it seems to me that this grind was started because he didn't expect that there would be any competition, and i find that very disrespectful to both myself personally and to the competitive nature of the world record.

i dont intend to cause drama but i would like to be very clear about the behind the scenes of this because i don't think that this race is fair to me at all

In averge's public Discord server, they pinged everyone to air out speedrunner LeKukie for going for the SMB1 Any% world record while they were unable to play the game. Averde is obviously not entitled to control when LeKukie does record attempts, but either way, they could've easily brought up the issue privately to LeKukie. However, they decided to immediately make the situation public, demonstrating their strong inclination towards stirring up drama.

She was banned before for mostly the same reason. There was an issue where she was pretty much questioning all moderator actions and also doing it in a public manner, which created a larger disturbance. She left the server, but I eventually banned her when she publicly implied on Twitter that we were allowing transphobia to exist here. The two examples provided were a DM between her and another user (which she never brought to anyone's attention and that user was perm banned when someone else brought it up) and another conversation she had with another user where he was asking what being trans meant and made the attack helicopter joke as part of the conversation. I timed him out for several days for the joke, which she actually initially took issue with. She didn't think I should time him out at all at the time, but it was something I felt I had to do because of how the prior leadership basically ignored those situations (edited)

This is a message from a moderator of Haxor's server. In it, they claim that average publicly questioned all moderator actions, creating a large disturbance. As the moderator explains, actions were already being taken, and there was no reason for light to be shed on it publicly.

In a two-week span before their third strike and ban, average repeatedly rejoined and left Niftski's Hut. Eventually, they decided to stay and send cryptic messages in the server, hinting that they were dissatisfied with something:

averge11 Today at 1:16 AM
sup fellas

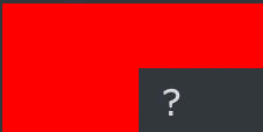

Today at 1:17 AM

Why do you keep leaving and joining?

averge11 Today at 1:17 AM seeing if something has been dealt with it still hasn't but whatever

Today at 1:18 AM

Nothing will be dealt with if you don't say anything?

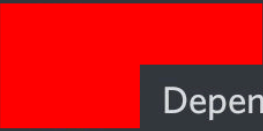

Nothing will be dealt with if you don't say anything?

averge11 Today at 1:19 AM
did say something to a mod

averge11 Today at 1:19 AM about a week ago i believe

Today at 1:20 AM

Depends on the mod

averge11 Today at 1:20 AM
what i feel like if you have a mod that won't do anything about an issue in a server
that's not a great mod

Niftski Today at 1:21 AM

dm me

not exactly sure what this is about

Today at 1:22 AM

There's a problem if the server owner has no idea what you're talking about

averge11 i feel like if you have a mod that won't do anything about an issue in a server

Sawyer0622 Today at 1:27 AM

u got an answer

Sawyer0622 Today at 1:27 AM

u wont get everything u want bud ur not a mod

Sawyer0622 u wont get everything u want bud

averge11 Today at 1:31 AM

what?

averge11 Today at 1:31 AM i mean

i'm just not gonna be in a server that supports someone who did some shitty things straight to me that's it

Sawyer0622 Today at 1:31 AM

wait what ummm

averge11 Today at 1:32 AM

i'm not gonna make you get rid of him

Niftski then told averge to DM him, stating that he wasn't sure what this was about:

Around this same time, Niftski asked the moderators in his server whether they should take action against AdamFerrari, who was involved in his own public drama during this time. AdamFerrari had a personal drama with his ex that took place mostly outside of the community, and the moderators of Niftski's Hut decided what occurred wasn't severe enough to warrant a punishment in his server.

Niftski then reached out to averge to see what they were referring to with the subliminal messages in his server, and it was regarding AdamFerrari. The screenshots below show the entire conversation:

average11 Today at 11:45 PM
not really proof it's more her word vs. his word also a lot of him not taking any actual blame when he was telling her

AdamFerrari 02/15/2022
I'll never forgive Tavi for not letting me tell you sooner. I'll never forgive myself either. But you deserve a happy life, and all the honesty I have left to muster. Since Tavi doesn't have the guts herself

If I could go back in time I'd prevent myself from ever meeting that manipulative woman. I know things would be a lot better. Maybe not for her, but I honestly could care less. She used me to get out of her engagement and left me in the dust. Feeling like an idiot. I always loved you way more. I should've just moved to Holland and proved it.

average11 this was the message he sent me right after i released my twitter thread

average11 Today at 11:48 PM
also according to luma he's sent a bunch of these types of messages to people

Niftski Today at 11:54 PM
Adam definitely deserved to be publicly called out if he was lying to everyone about her being manipulative or trying to put the blame on her. But as far as the messages he sent to you go, if there is no proof to disprove what Adam is claiming there, I can't exactly do anything. It seems like he is just giving you his side of the story, but I don't really see it as him trying to manipulate you in my eyes. Afaik, the only thing he really exactly owned up to was him cheating on her. But by definition he isn't manipulating you if you can't prove what he's saying is false

average11 Today at 11:56 PM
the first message is undeniably manipulative lol

@average11 this was the message he sent me right after i released my twitter thread

Niftski Today at 11:57 PM
this?

average11 Today at 11:57 PM
yes

Niftski Today at 11:59 PM
That doesn't really seem manipulative to me, if he gave you his side of the story and everything and there's no way to disprove what he is saying, there's no way to tell that he is being manipulative

Average explains to Niftski that their problem with AdamFerrari is that he tried to manipulate them into believing his side of the story. However, there was no solid evidence in any screenshot average sent that showed any manipulation. Even average acknowledges this, saying there was “not really proof it's more her word vs. his word”. Niftski concluded that there wasn't enough evidence to prove that AdamFerrari was lying about anything, so no action was taken. This made average leave the server once again later on. Due to their offensive comments about others and them stirring up unnecessary drama publicly, average received their third strike and was banned from Niftski's Hut.

Finally, this next section contains accounts from the staff channel of Haxor's server where moderators discuss average's inappropriate behavior that they displayed publicly. Although this behavior was from a few years ago (2021-2023), it is still relevant to average's actions today because it shows that they have not changed their ways in response to punishment, clearly demonstrated in their recent behavior. Therefore, we felt it was worth including, even though average was younger at the time:

12/13/21, 1:06 PM

What's the deal with the comments from averg?
Sarcastic? Either way it's not a great look
And your call on

12/13/21, 1:17 PM

What the heck
I didn't even see what happened with averge I was having food

12/13/21, 1:18 PM

Made some homophobic/transphobic comments shortly after the light mode pic that commented on

12/13/21, 1:19 PM

Oh crap what Well I'll try to keep an eye on all of this, I'm very much confused as to how all of this even started happening

12/13/21, 1:24 PM

i dm'd averge and warned him to chill

12/13/21, 1:42 PM

I legit thought they were bots/scammers
I can't fathom why you'd think it would be ok to change your name to Hitler or Stalin

(In addition to average making homophobic/transphobic comments publicly, they also changed their name and profile picture in the server to reference Hitler and Stalin)

This screenshot from 2022 shows that average was publicly stirring up drama by constantly questioning moderator actions in the server. This shows their tendency to make anything a public matter to create more drama instead of attempting to handle things privately. Similar behavior was also demonstrated here.

does anybody know how many warnings average has had about her behavior here recently or how many times we've had to call her out on something? its getting to the point where i wanna ban but i wont do it unless we all agree (edited)

2/14/22, 4:04 PM

Just had a look at general chat to see what you guys were talking about and I hate it there

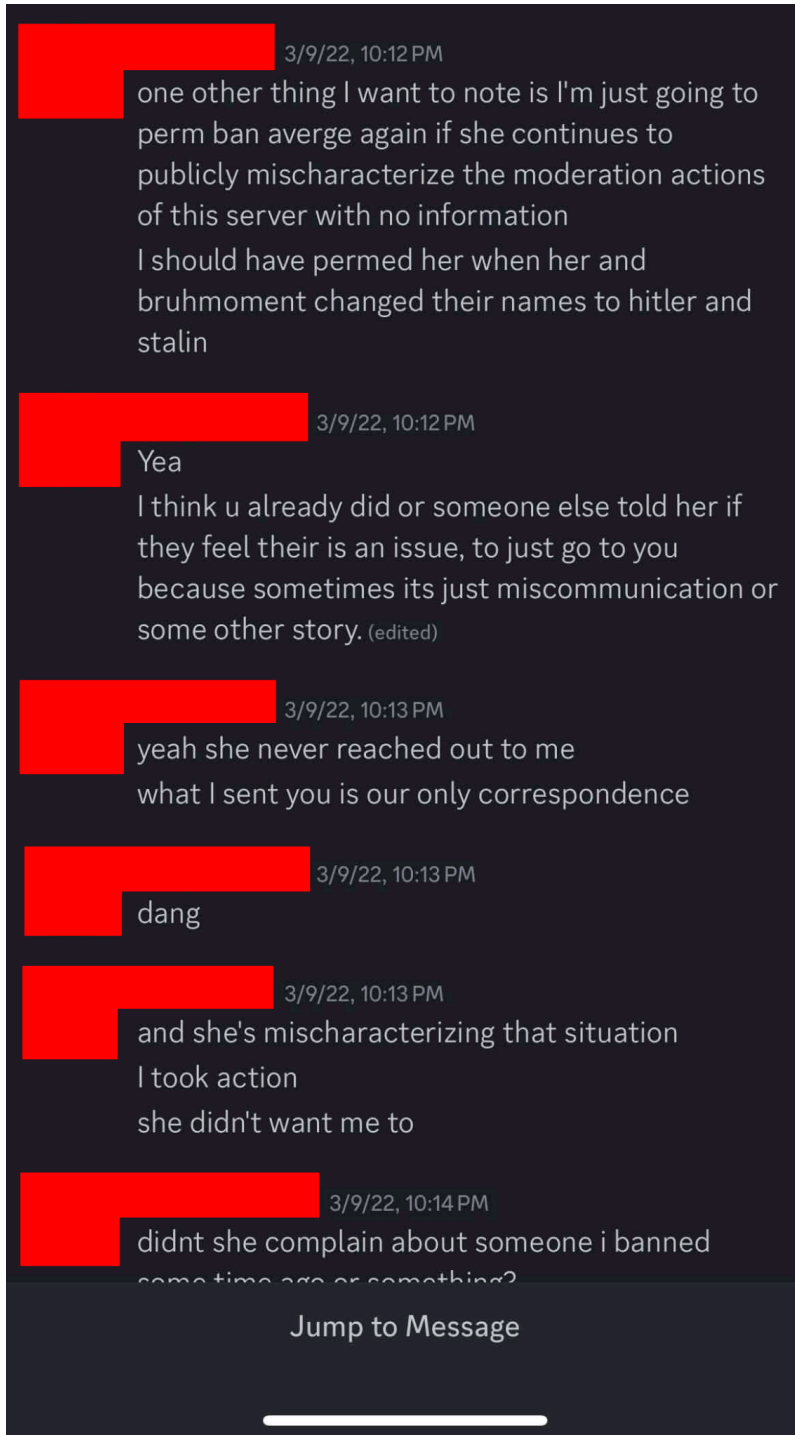

2/14/22, 4:05 PM

thats kinda why ive stayed away from general

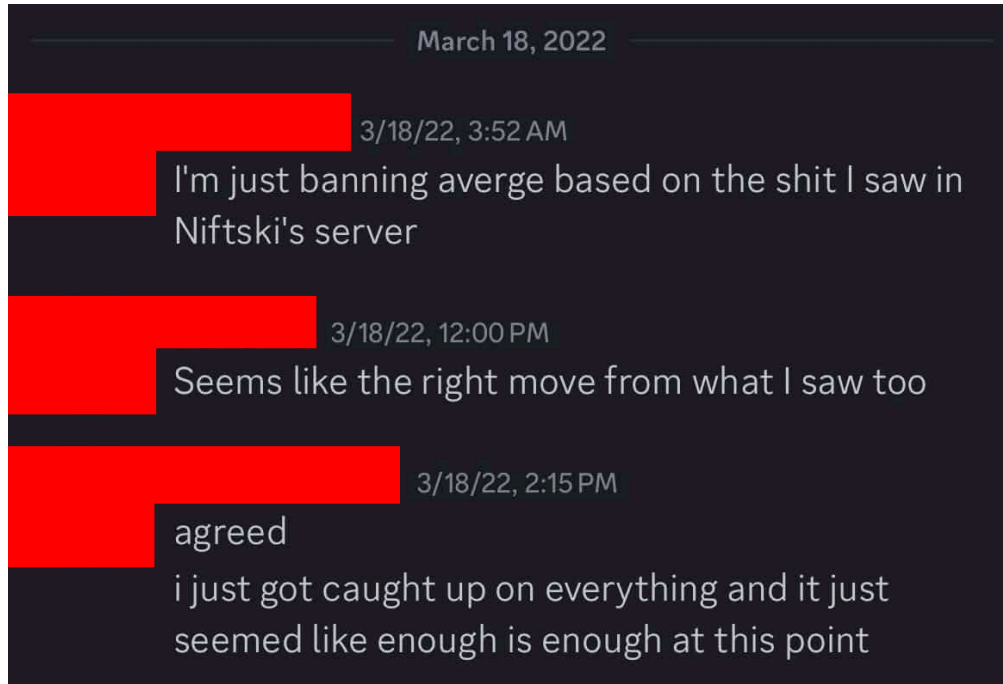

2/14/22, 4:06 PM

It's smb1 but somehow even worse

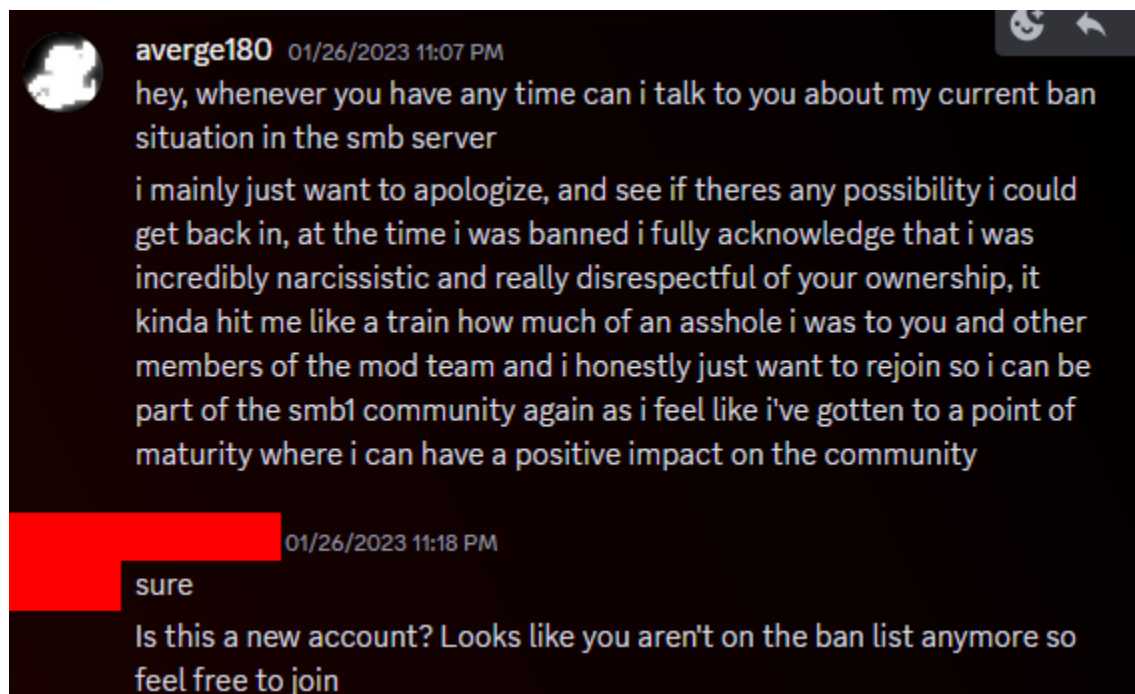

(This shows that average being warned about their behavior was a repeated issue)

This screenshot shows that average continued to publicly mischaracterize the moderation actions of Haxor's server throughout 2022 with no interest in trying to bring up the issues privately.

Average was already on very thin ice for their actions beforehand, and the situation that took place in Niftski's Hut ended up being the final straw that resulted in their ban in Haxor's server.

In 2023, average personally apologized to a moderator of Haxor's server for their actions in DMs on their newer Discord account. They admit that they were being narcissistic and disrespectful, and then they claim they've matured and believe they can have a positive impact on the community.

3/30/23, 11:48 AM

I'm kind of concerned regarding the toxic behaviour of average, mainly in regards to being rude to anyone who asks a question she finds stupid

3/30/23, 1:02 PM

that's been a problem for quite some time

3/30/23, 1:03 PM

I'm just wondering what should or could be done to address this since I just don't really tolerate this, even after a conversation regarding not being toxic in 2j

3/30/23, 1:10 PM

2) Treat everyone with respect. No exceptions. if they can't follow the rules, they don't belong in here IMO

3/30/23, 1:13 PM

I agree, I just feel she's have been quite toxic towards others frequently (edited)

So I'm wondering if we should maybe mute for 3 days to remind her or something. Sorry if I seem a bit hesitant it's just I'm friends with average's friends so I may get backlash regarding this

3/30/23, 1:16 PM

Maybe just a warning this time? Extended mute next time and ban after that However, two months after this unban, a moderator of Haxor's server brought up in the staff channel that they were concerned about average being toxic towards other community members. Although this was in 2023, it mirrors the deluge of malicious behavior they've gotten away with very recently.

Conclusion

The purpose of this document is to show that average is guilty of many of the same things they have publicly exposed others for doing while highlighting several other instances of their problematic behavior, including doxxing, slurs, targeted threats, and blackmail. Some of this hypocrisy and malicious behavior also extends to others in their friend group. This is all relevant to the recent incident of average conspiring with others to ban input swapping specifically to sabotage Niftski's TAS tie progress, which is thoroughly outlined in this other document and video.

We don't necessarily want average and their orbiters to be exiled from the community, and we do not believe that these actions are irredeemable. However, strong consequences must be issued for the years of toxicity, publicly stirring up drama, fostering undue hatred against Niftski, and unnecessarily sowing division in our community.
