Nazis

In this comment chain, Brandon (who claims to have spent 11 years doing "a tonne of research" on the Nazis) expresses sympathy for his "favorite Nazi" Hermann Goring, Hitler's second-in-command and the man who personally signed off on the "Final Solution," and attempts to downplay his crimes. A direct quote from his post: "My favorite Nazi Goring had a point, a bad thing they did. But they were just following orders."

He uses shallow moral relativism and false equivalency to absolve Goring of responsibility for his atrocities, stating that "everyone had a POW camp, why was his setting up that any different from the americans or russians setting up their POW camps?" and that "you must realize all countries break Geneva Convention, the loser get's condemned for it. It's all wrong, Germany, Japan, Russia, America, all of these "righteous" and "unrighteous" countries are the same, all truly corrupt and doing the same thing."

He also uses weak appeals to emotion to further excuse Goring's actions, posting that "...his life was in Germany, his family, his home, his child, his wife. He runs away, they die, he runs with them, they are hunted. He would run to where? An allied country and be put to prison for 100 years and separated from his family? Why do all of that when he could simply say "yes" and sign a document and live. He wasn't the cause, he just simply gave a "sure". Nothing more. At no point does Brandon mention the fact that the millions of innocent souls who were imprisoned, tortured, and killed because of Goring's actions also had their own homes, families, children, and wives. These people are apparently not deserving of even a footnote in Brandon's eyes in comparison to "his favorite Nazi Goring's" individual circumstances.

Brandon has expressed that he feels a personal affinity with Hermann Goring, posting that "I ultimately see a lot of myself in Goring.in his person, in his world view, in his ways, and in his flamboyance... and thus I sympathize with him and his position, but I won't deny that he was a bad person, because even in my book he was. I just think he is getting a lot of blame for something he couldn't stop. I am not a Nazi sympathizer, I detest heavily on almost everything they did, except economic competency." The Nazis' "economic competency" is a common (and patently false) claim among sympathizers attempting to justify and/or romanticize their brutality, and also ignores the fact that a very large portion of their economy was based on horrific slave labor and war plunder.

While not necessarily synonymous with Nazi ideology (though he died in 1900, Nietzsche himself condemned nationalism and antisemitism), Brandon has made several threads/posts [\[1\]](#) [\[2\]](#) [\[3\]](#) about his identification with a certain element of Frederick Nietzsche's philosophy: specifically, the idea of the Overman or Übermensch. In one thread, he stated that he wanted to write a ~20,000-word book/manifesto on his idea of human nature and the path to becoming an Overman.

In this case it's not about people dying. It's the facts that their deaths don't have any greater motive. It's the anger at the guy for killing people instead of killing people to gain something.

also, don't Psycho/Sociopaths who are high functioning be raised and "know" it's "bad" but in his mind the emotions aren't there, he just realizes that he can't feel something but knows that he's been told it's wrong. He sees nothing wrong with 9/11 or the genocides of african warlords, because he sees them as taking what they want and being powerful enough to do it. Versus just some dude killing. He don't care about people dying, it's the being upset with the guy doing it for being a nothing.

Brandon was arrested in October 2021 for domestic assault, he faced long months of trial but was acquitted, having only to pay a fine, and although he always claimed the accusation was false, I knew it wasn't, he was very well capable of assaulting a woman.

Brandon has guns in his house, and always makes a point of saying how much he wishes he could use them on his 54-year-old ex, and that he wouldn't hesitate to fire her if she upset him again.

she is getting on my nerves

Damn bitch

man, you gave her attention, it's not her fault.

if she comes to my house again i will blow her head off

if i really got aids, she will pay for it

Stop it

Jesus Christ BRANDON

I'm sorry

can you delete the chat ?

please

Brandon felt comfortable telling me about his darkest thoughts, including a plan to murder his ex, later he apologized to me and said he had no idea why he was saying those things and just asked me to delete the conversation and forget about all that.

Brandon was in an inappropriate relationship with an underage girl for at least 2 years; a relationship he has personally admitted to in a Reddit post.

This is why I'm worried about having a daughter. I don't want her to grow up, be a slut who I am worried 24/7 about, while she's out giving her pussy away, kissing other girls and practicing debauchery. it's fucking disgusting in my eyes, but only because it would be my daughter. I guess every pop worth his salt is like that.

Gotta say, Johnny reminds me of myself, dislike of lesbian shit, whores and all that. Faithful, but maybe just maybe not good morals. It's an odd thing, but I always thought that, it's why he's one of my fav's... and Ralph.

I also find "lesbians and whores fucking disgusting" as he said, when he spoke it I couldn't believe another man found lesbians to be sickening.

"If it's a girl, just abort."

Even Jason found her pretty, as he tried to rape her in the living room. Now if Jason finds a girl attractive, then she's gotta be pretty damn gorgeous.

Because no matter what society's pea brains think, Murder is worse than Rape. And that's a fact, Rape is not even nowhere near as bad as murder, rape is only bad due to egotism.
