Legislation in the Commonwealth of Australia and in various States and Territories restricts the information that can be disclosed about a person's court history unless specific exemptions apply under law. These legislative exemptions can include specific types of employment, voluntary work, licences or membership of a profession. Policies governing the disclosure of convictions by police jurisdictions are also applied. Therefore, the information provided may not include all of a person's convictions or findings of guilt by a court. Generally, the person is not required by law to disclose these spent convictions unless the type of employment, position, licence or professional membership is exempt under the relevant law s.

This information should not be taken to be a complete record of the person's Disclosable Court Outcomes beyond the validity date provided.
