

The DocOnTheRadio Manifesto

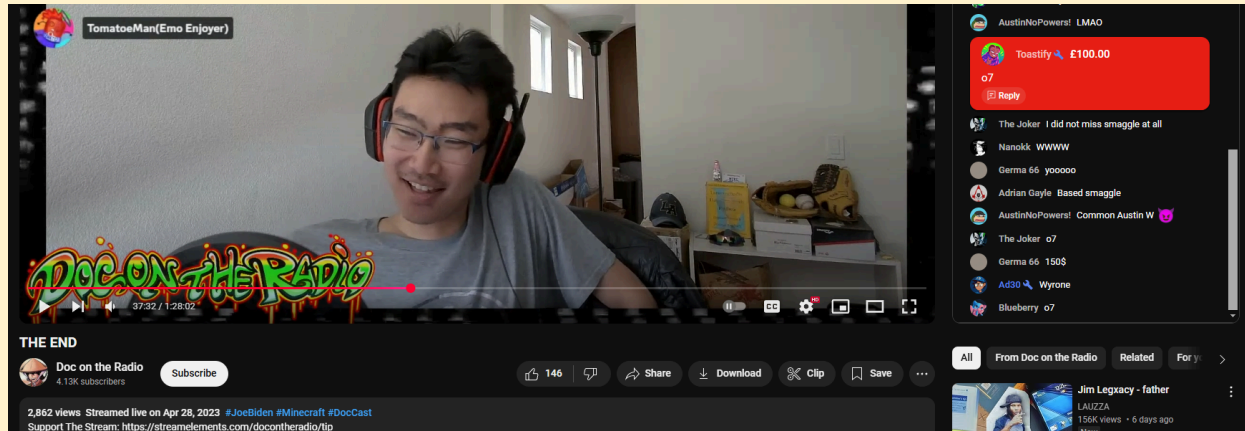

Introduction

From mid 2021 to early 2024, Doc On The Radio was a small but somewhat known streamer inside the commentary community. He's most well known for his show "Sperg Alert" in which he documented the ongoing of smaller figures and lolcows within commentary and their drama. He would also bring them on and regularly hosted larger YouTubers in the community - either for debate or just for having fun on gaming streams.

In early 2022, I started watching Doc as he streamed. In mid 2022, after my first couple of call-ins to his show, Doc accepted me as a co-host for his show and gave me the role. I would go on to co-host the show a number of times, sometimes with just me and him - but mostly with me, Doc and other co-hosts. Up until around March 2024, I valued my friendship with Doc. We mostly spoke online and on the air, but we would have conversations off the air as well from time to time. I appreciated that he gave me a platform even if it was just a co-host role, as it was a lot of fun and it made me friends with people inside the community who I still talk with to this day. For fuck's sake, when he initially left streaming in April 2023 - I sent him a £100 donation as a gift to send him off.

In March 2024, something was revealed to me that forever tarnished my friendship with Doc, and subsequently his friendships with everyone else he knew. The purpose of this document is to publish what exactly happened, who knew behind the scenes and why I'm now talking about this well over a year after I first learnt of it.

Memory Unknown

As mentioned previously, Doc initially left YouTube in April 2023 in order to pursue education. However, he would make a return in September of that year to continue streaming - albeit sporadically. I would make a few call-ins and watch his show from time to time. I even appreciated that he reviewed my Allucid video on stream - but I was mostly busy with other stuff. Doc would announce he was leaving again in early 2024 and this time it would be far more impactful, as he was actually leaving for 2 years to focus on education in a much more fulfilling way. This wasn't a shock to anyone - Doc had been publicly stating that he wasn't gonna be back for long from the moment he started streaming again. By the time he would have been back it's hard to say whether there would even be a community to come back to.

As the day of Doc's last stream approached, I was thinking about my second ever call in to his show. I don't have the specific stream but from my DMs with Doc, it seemed to have happened on the 29th of May 2022 as he had offered me the week prior to come back on his show. As most of Doc's co-hosts know, Sperg Alert wasn't really a set show where everyone clocked in and then clocked out. It was common after the show that friends of Doc would join, talk to each other about things, even play games with each other for hours. And it was in one of these post-show VCs that I remembered something really strange. The VC consisted of myself, two previous co-hosts of Doc's show who have asked to remain private and Doc himself.

It was during this call that the topic of someone called Kat or Kitty came up, and as a relatively new viewer of his streams I didn't know what that was about. I remembered that Doc explained to me that some years ago, he had dated Kat when she was 13 and he was 17/18 but stressed it was a purely romantic relationship. I remember hearing about that and saying that it was fucked up, and then Doc explained that they had sorted stuff out ages ago and she didn't see herself as a victim. He then made a passing comment about how he was lucky that SalvoPancakes, a streamer in the community, hadn't looked into the clip of it. The clip in question was posted to Commentary Aids on July 4th, 2022 - taken from a now deleted stream.

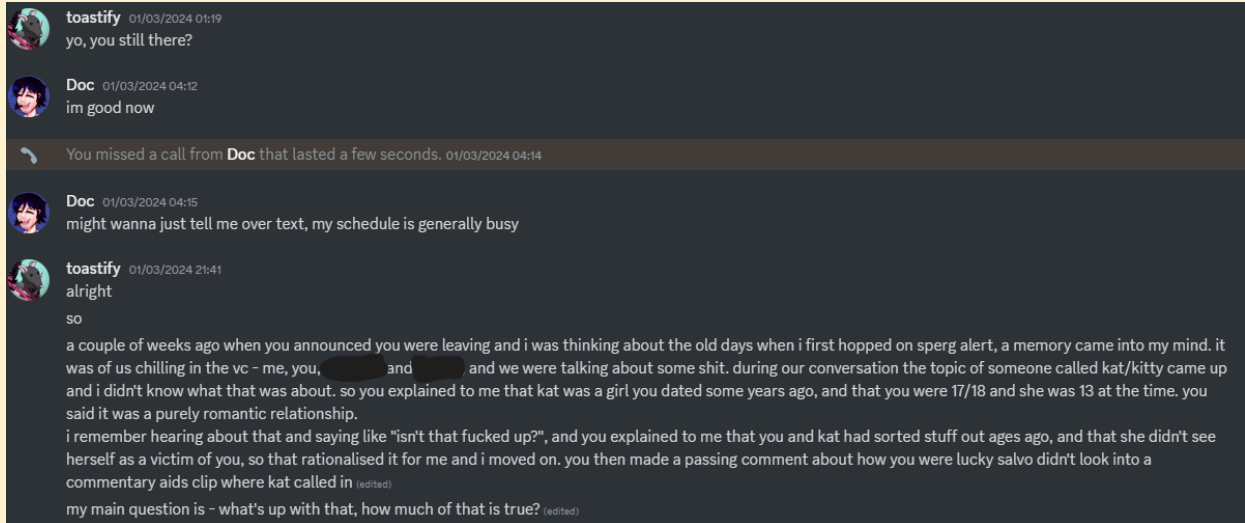

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=jXSn6dEaHWo>

In this clip, you can hear "Kitty" call into the server. It's well known by the way to co-hosts that Doc's current server has had a long history where it previously went under different names and had different purposes. In this clip, Kitty remarks on their friendship whilst she was a mod for his server, and how they knew each other when Doc was 17 and Kitty was 13. The rest of the clip is mostly Doc and the rest of the people in the call joking about this friendship and adding a pedophile joke undertone to it. Doc also quickly jumps to mention that he has never sent any sexual pictures online.

My vivid memory of my conversation with Doc was then washed away for the next few months. In hindsight it's hard to believe but by the time I was on Doc's streams, it was around 1-2AM in my time. That was probably why I never made a bigger deal of it at the time. So when I started remembering it again, memories triggered by reminiscing about the first few times I spoke to Doc, I was both concerned and confused. I even began doubting myself, especially when I went to both of Doc's former co-hosts who I remember being in the call with. When I talked to them, they genuinely had no recollection of this ever happening. I felt like I was going crazy, as it was fuzzy to even remember if they were deafened in the call or not, but deep in my mind I was sure this had happened. To try and settle my concern once and for all, I decided to message Doc. By this point, he had already quit streaming.

My Confrontation

On the 1st of March 2024, I messaged Doc asking for a call. He only responded to me at around 4am and asked for a text explanation.

Doc's response read as follows.

Doc 02/03/2024 00:21

So i edated a girl when I was 17 and she was 13, nothing sexual ever happened and the relationship ended officially after I turned 18
I have said that I would never do that again and that it was stupid for me to do that

toastify 02/03/2024 00:21

How long was the relationship?

Doc 02/03/2024 00:22

If I remember correctly it was only for a few months like 4-6 maybe but that might be wrong that's based on memory she turned 14 at some point i believe

toastify 02/03/2024 00:23

I see

I don't know man, I don't know why I supressed this thought for ages but that really doesn't sit right with me
Even if you were technically both minors that still feels icky

Doc 02/03/2024 00:24

I mean I agree with you I don't know what else to tell you lol

toastify 02/03/2024 00:26

yeah I understand
so you broke up after you turned 18
why so

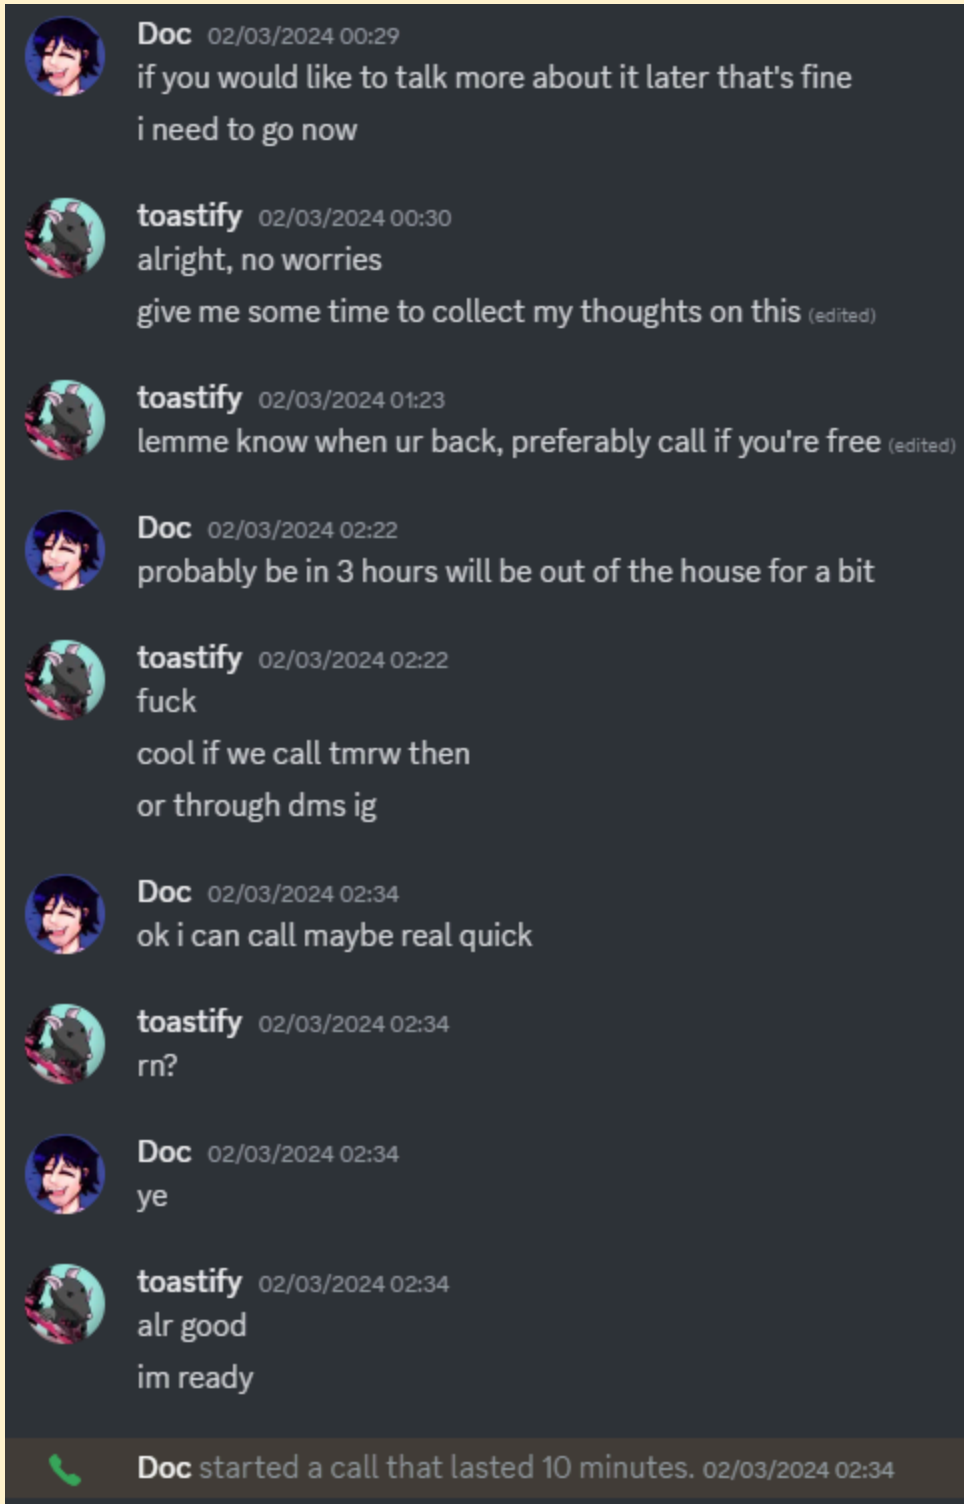

Doc 02/03/2024 00:27

because that's when i realized it was messed up it was so long ago but nothing ever came from that

toastify 02/03/2024 00:29

yeah i understand

To reassure everyone that these DMs are indeed real, I will now be leaking part of that call with Doc. Just to be completely clear, our call was 10 minutes, as is the full recording. What has been cut out of the call is either just private stuff or me trying to reason with Doc's logic and say that he was fine - attempting to get any new information out of him.

However, if Doc wishes to contest any issues with this call, I will be happy to leak more of it.

(<https://youtu.be/c9Qnd9jV5xM>)

Based on the details that Doc has given me, I felt pretty weird about this relationship. I appreciate that he was incredibly forthcoming with the details of this relationship but that didn't significantly change anything for me. Personally, I found it incredibly strange and despite the fact this happened back in 2018, I would never be fine with a 17 year old dating a 13 year old. Though both ages are legally minors, I believe the age gap between them is too inappropriate to morally continue - even in an alleged romantic context. I also find it very telling that Doc only broke up with the girl on his 18th birthday and quite literally stated that his motivation to break up was because of legality. It showed me that Doc was still romantically interested in her, and only broke up with her because he reached an age where he would be held to a harsher standard.

Who Knew?

After having this call, I went to the two other former co-hosts that I've mentioned previously and we went over the call, later discussing how to handle this properly. So, I want to be as clear as I can on the knowledge of this situation and my motivations behind keeping it private until now.

I want to make this very clear. No one knew of this until I asked Doc. None of his closest co-hosts or YouTubers he was affiliated with knew of what happened, and only found out when I got the information from Doc and informed them. Those in the clip where Kitty calls in presumed the whole thing to be a joke, much like the audience had perceived it. I also asked people who I told to specifically keep this information private.

There were a few reasons why I've kept this private for so long. For one, Kitty, the supposed victim in the situation, was pretty much unreachable, and thus I was completely in the dark about whether I should have released the information. There were questions about whether she would even want something like this out there and attention brought to here. Over time, however, this has eroded away due to her total inactivity. At this point, I believe she left that account entirely and I am confident something like this will not be traced back to her.

And when I looked over at what putting the information out there would do, the cons outweigh the pros. Doc wasn't going to be active anymore for a long time, it was doubted whether he would even come back years later - so to me there wasn't any chance of a present threat online. This information was thus intended to be released in the event that he came back (something which probably won't happen now). All I would do if I just went straight off the bat was possibly harm the victim and the people who used to know him and had no idea that he did this.

It was only until my hand was recently forced.

Why Now?

In around mid January of 2025, YouTuber AidenProjects went live on a now deleted gaming stream. In said stream he reviewed the Commentary Aids clip with Doc and Kitty, and leaked that Doc and Kitty had actually dated - something that wasn't public information until then and wasn't inferred as such if it wasn't for Aiden. Though the stream was made private, word was still getting around the community. I was only alerted to it in the first place from people inside the chat of the streamer Dickers.

Ice_bich what is this

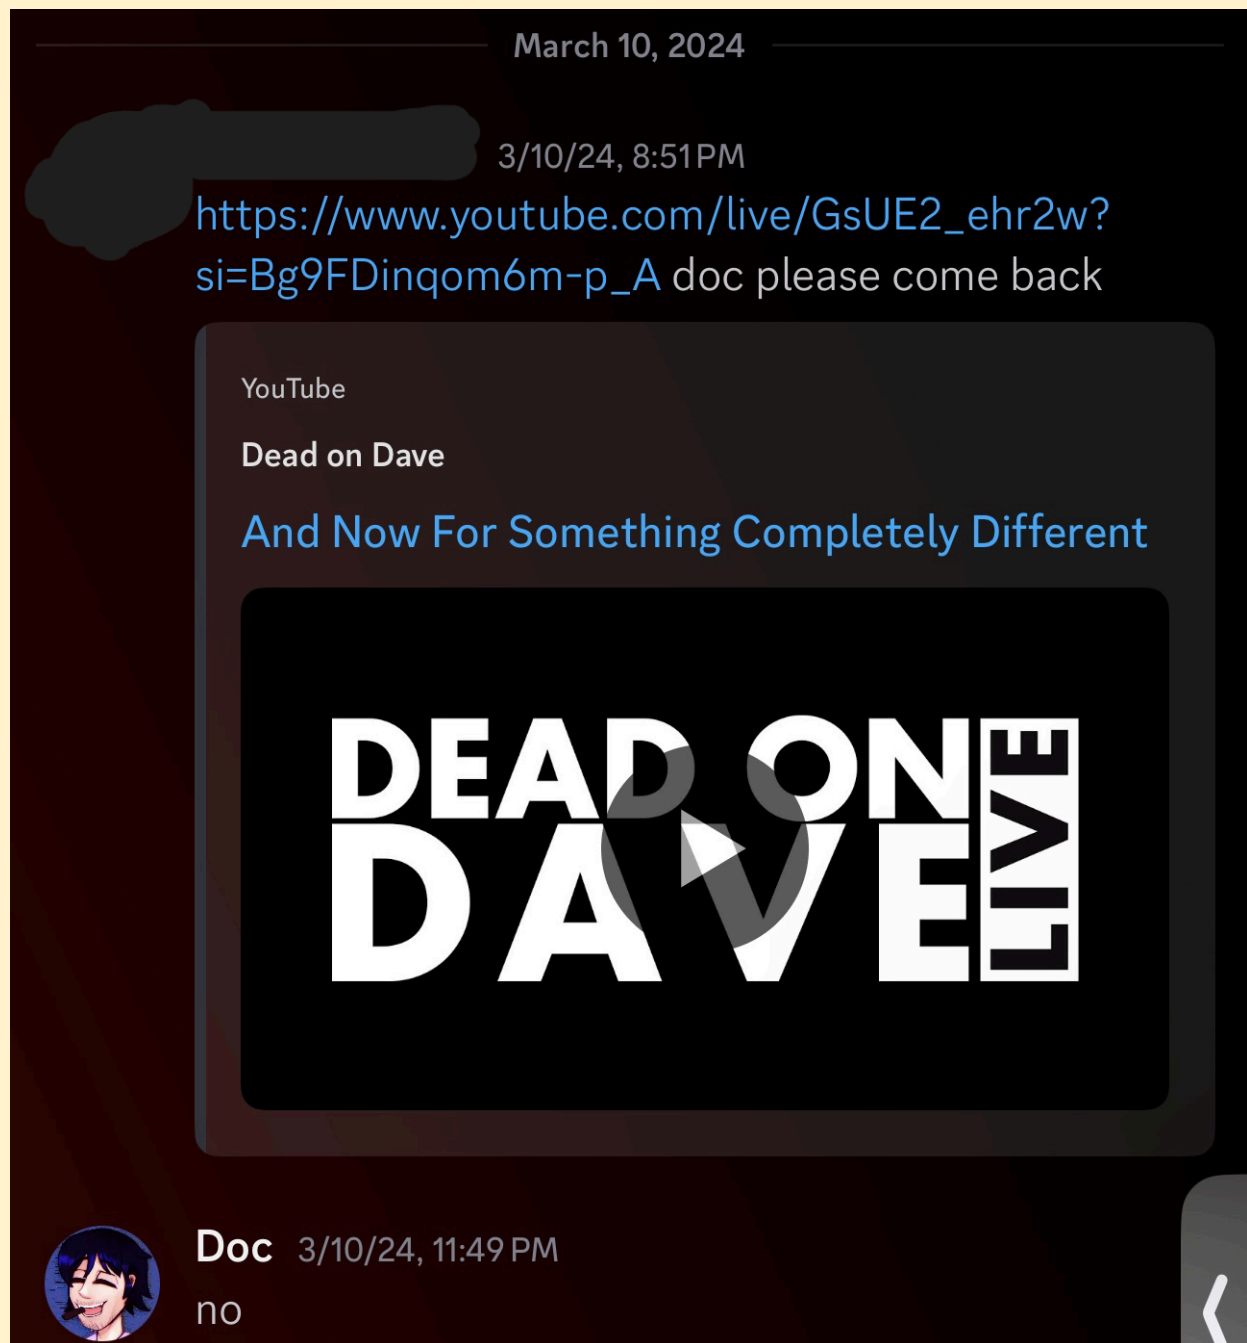

Jiaeme i was gonna dm you toastify but you dont had dms open lol

This is not the first time Aiden has alluded to this leak despite me asking him not to publish it or allude to it in any way publicly. If you're ever wondering why he suddenly blurted out a line about "Doc's kittens" in the middle of a stream with AugieRFC - now you know.

This was one of the reasons that I have now opted to go public. I never wanted this to ever go public unless Doc returned, but these leaks present an entirely new issue - creating rumours that may be spun into a completely fabricated narrative. At that point, the truth would be diluted and innocent people would have gotten fucked over by speculation that this was some sort of well kept commentary community secret a la French Girl. As someone who got all the information in the first place and brought it forward and told people I wanted it to be private until further notice, I felt as if it was my responsibility to break the story. Doing so at the wrong time or not at all in some cases would have been my fault entirely for how people would then be smeared.

Thankfully, I was helped out by a former associate of Doc's who has also requested to remain anonymous. I was talking to them in mid January 2025, and had previously told this person of what happened. It was during this call that they talked about their last interaction with Doc, a joke asking him to come back. Doc had replied with a succinct "no". Keep in mind, these two talked more than me and Doc did - so for Doc to give this very shut in response signified something to us. To add to that, this interaction was only days after my call with Doc. This signified to me that Doc was probably never coming back because of our confrontation, which certainly changed things as I was anticipating to only release this information when he came back.

And now, we're here.

I'll end off by clarifying this is not a document to call for cancellation, or even to seek justice. My contact with the minor of this entire situation has been non-existent, and besides this is all about a YouTube channel with 4,000 subscribers. This is not a "crusade" I want to lead, nor is it one that should be led. The purpose of this is to make this as public information so that people are fully clear on what happened, how it happened and who knew. Again, I'm all too familiar with how disparate leaks and rumours can so quickly spiral into completely fabricated narratives that are far from the truth, hence why we're now here.

Whether you now hate Doc or don't care about what he did isn't really my concern. I wanted to make this to make my stance clear that I have not been friends with Doc since March 2024 and will likely never be. Although I don't want to speak on anyone else's behalf, most of the people I have told behind the scenes share a similar sentiment. Of course though, they are free to come out with how they feel in their own time.

Thank you for reading.
